CIA Organized Poison Attempt

©The New York Times

Washington — The Central Intelligence Agency organized an attempt in early 1961 to poison Premier Fidel Castro, his younger brother, Raul, and Che Guevara, according to a source who claims direct knowledge of the operation.

The CIA believed that the three Cuban political figures would be capable of unifying Cuba after a counterrevclutionary invasion then being planned, the source said.

The triple assassination plot, the source said, was conceived in the latter half of 1960 under the Eisenhower administration and directed by Sam Giancana and John Roselli, two alleged organized crime figures recruited by the CIA as middlemen for the job.

First To Include Others

Several reports have been published recently about three CIA-inspired attempts on Castro's life around the time of the April 15, 1961, invasion at the Bay of Pigs. But the source's account is the first that has included other revolutionary leaders as targets, suggesting that the CIA hoped to create a power vacuum in Cuba to foster confusion and disorientation following the invasion.

A second source who has seen CIA documents relating to political assassinations, while declining to provide any corroborative details, said that at least one of the reported attempts concerning Cuba was "more complex than just Castro."

According to the source with direct knowledge, planning for the triple murder plot began in the latter half of 1960, before the election of John F. Kennedy as president in November of that year, and the unsuccessful attempt was made in late March or early April of the following year.

The source could not say, however, whether approval for the operation had been sought or received from high-level officials of the Eisenhower or Kennedy administration outside the CIA.

Sheffield Edwards Named

The CIA project officer in the case, he said, was Sheffield Edwards, a former military man who, before retiring, served as head of the CIA's Office of Security.

Edwards appeared as a witness several weeks ago before a closed session of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence Activities. Repeated efforts to reach him for comment on his alleged role in the operation were unsuccessful.

Edwards, the source said, enlisted Robert A. Maheu, a FBI former agent, and, until 1970, a top aide to billionaire Howard R. Hughes, to serve as the CIA's liaison with the criminal underworld figures selected to arrange the murders.

Maheu, who recently invoked the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination in declining to testify before the Senate committee about his CIA relationship, reportedly sought out Roselli, whom he knew, and through him gained the cooperation of Giancana, then alledgedly a leading organized crime figure in the Chicago area who had financial interests in prerevolutionary Cuba.

Three At Miami Beach

Maheu, Roselli and Giancana, the source said, were moved to Miami Beach to oversee the multiple assassination attempt. Giancana was installed in a suite at the Fontainebleau Hotel.

Roselli, the source said, was put in touch by the CIA with a Cuban assassin on the island who agreed to attempt to poison in a single stroke the Castro brothers and Guevara, a revolutionary folk hero who then headed the National Bank of Cuba.

The would-be assassin reported back to his superiors, however, according to the source, that he had been unable to get close enough to the three men when they were taking a meal together to accomplish the job, and the man reportedly was then whisked out of Cuba by prearrangement shortly before the Bay of Pigs invasion.

Slow-Acting Poison

The poison to have been used in the attempt reportedly was supplied to Roselli by the CIA and was described as a slow-acting compound designed to leave no trace of its presence.

One well-informed government official said that the CIA had acknowledged to administrating investigators three separate attempts to murder Castro, two of them involving poison and the third a bullet from a high-powered rifle.

It could not be learned, however, whether all of the plots, or only the one described by the source, had also been directed at Raul Castro and Guevara. The latter was killed in October 1967 by Bolivian soldiers who had been trained by American counterinsurgency experts.

Merit Increase Okay If Money's Available

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska faculty members can get merit pay increases for the coming school year, the State Department of Justice has ruled.

However, whether there is enough money to allow for merit raises is another question.

Dept. Atty. Gen. Gerald Vitamvas said, "There is nothing in the (NU budget) bill which specifically prohibits merit increases."

NU administrators had taken the position that the budget bill solely authorizes a 5% plus $468 for faculty members, the same percentage given all state employes.

Vitamvas noted that during the current fiscal year, merit pay raises have been given by various state agencies and that the law gives agencies complete discretion to give merit raises.

This, of course, is contingent on having sufficient funds for such raises, Vitamvas said.

NU administrators attempted to get state senators to agree to raising tution by $1 per credit hour in order to fund faculty merit pay increases. State senators, however, rejected the move.

The opinion was requested by Norm Otto, an aide to Gov. J. James Exon. The Exon administration has taken the position that merit pay raises can be funded through savings in salary budgets. For instance, funds for vacant teaching positions can be diverted to merit pay increases.

Such savings have provided merit pay increases in other agencies.

However, Vice Chancellor Miles Tommerasen said the opinion really doesn't change anything.

Still No Money

Either way, he said, it comes out that there is no money for merit pay increases.

"We're already cutting our base budget," Tommerasen said in an interview. "There are no excess funds."

Recent data indicated that the average faculty salary on the Lincoln campus ranges from $22,500 a year for a full professor to $11,600 a year for an instructor.

Tommerasen acknowledged that if an instructor were hired to replace a retiring professor that there would be a savings. However, he doubted that would be enough to fund merit raises.

"I don't see how we can make merit increases" using that means, he said.

He said NU is even having a difficult time finding enough money for promotions.

Tommerasen said the Board of Regents will probably discuss the merit pay issue this weekend at its meeting.

Man Charged In Drug Case Not At UNL

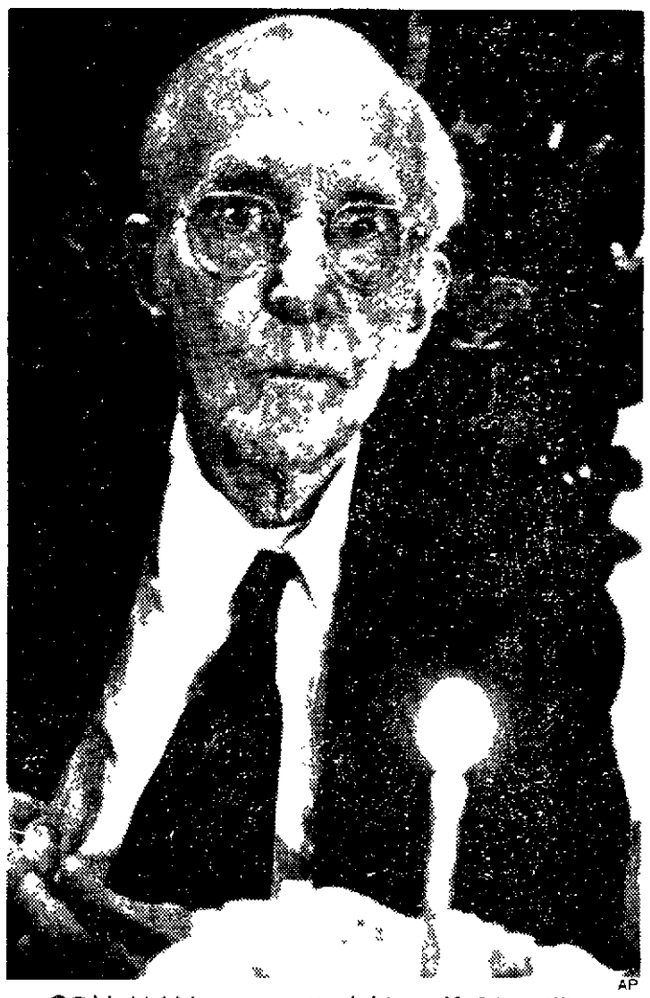
An Iranian native arrested last weekend on charges of conspiracy to import $1.1 million worth of hashish is not connected with the University of Nebraska, according to a check of student and personnel records.

Kazem Majd, 27, 1212 S. 15th St., #9, was listed as a graduate student at UNL in recent newspaper stories. However a check of student records shows that Majd was not a student at the university between January and May and personnel records show he was not employed at the university anytime in 1974 or 1975.

A caretaker at the apartment complex where police located Majd said the man was an instructor at UNL, according to police reports.

Federal agents at Baltimore found 227 pounds of hashish in cellophane packages in a car consiged to Majd aboard an Iraman vessel.

Majd was released on $15,000 bond this week and a preliminary hearing on the conspiracy charge was scheduled for Friday in Lincoln.



CON MAN . . . netted himself $8 million.

'Yellow Kid' Has Nobody To Cheat

CHICAGO (AP) — Joseph "Yellow Kid" Weil, a legendary con artist whose grandiose schemes netted an estimated $8 million, has nobody left to cheat except Father Time.

He will be 100 years old Monday.

For 2½ years the shriveled, fragile little man has been a welfare patient in a convalescent home, living on memories of his heyday in the glittering world of flim flam during the 1920s.

Although his thoughts wander at times, his eyes still sparkle and so does his sense of humor. With the help of attendants he dresses every day in a suit, a white shirt and a gold-colored tie — all donated to the man whose sartorial splendor once was an international trademark.

"If I had it to do all over again, I would be foolish if I didn't," said Yellow Kid, a sobriquet from a comic strip character of the times and one on which Weil was quick to cash in.

He had yellowish red hair and golden whiskers, drove yellow cars, wore yellow kid gloves, and had canary yellow calling cards. He was in and out of jail 41 times but reformed in 1941 following 27 months in prison on a mail fraud charge involving a phony oil lease scheme.

In 1949, he was acquitted on a charge of swindling The Little Sisters of the Poor out of a $3 contribution. That was his last hurrah.

"I don't feel a day over 70," he quipped in a recent interview. "I still like to look at the ladies. I like a sip of wine now and then. I listen to the radio. But I'll be damned if I will play bingo with the rest around here. It's a ripoff."

He says he spent all his money on "high living and travel."

"What I miss most are my old pals, like The Deacon (his partner Deacon Buckminster)," he said. "If I were younger I would be doing today what I did then, and, if anything, I would be raking in more money. We used to judge prospects by their expressions, even the contour of their head. I look at people today and have decided there are more gullible ones around now than then.

"The most gullible of all were bankers and lawyers. Isn't that funny? The reason is that they felt so secure in their knowledge that they didn't think anyone would dare sell them a bill of goods."

As a young man, working out of paneled suites in New York and Chicago, Weil had many disguises. He was known variously as Dr. Henri Reuel, John Bauer, Sir John Ruskin Wellington and Count Ivan Ovarnoff as he gypped wealthy financiers, industrialists and businessmen.

New Structure Planned For Development Dept.

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

By July 1 city fathers hope to have a better idea of just what the remodeled Community Development Department will look like.

A proposed structure of that department, the city's newest, will be drafted in the next few weeks by Barton-Aschman Associates at the request of the City Council and mayor.

The officials asked the consultants to do the job following a round table discussion on restructuring the department Wednesday night.

Barton-Aschman, which helped draft the department's one-year plan, also will supply a job description for the agency's director. The consultants will attempt to decide whether a transportation division should be housed under the Community Development Department's roof or separated into a new department.

Cost $2,000

Although it would be cheaper to have city staff map out the new department, council members agreed it would be much faster to have the consultants do the job. It will cost around $2,000.

Mayor Helen Boosalis supported the consultant approach.

"I think the department's floating. It's time we got going," she said.

Mrs. Boosalis has been heading up the agency since director Leo Scherer resigned the directorship in mid-May to go into private business.

The lawmakers and the mayor agreed that one new section of the department should deal with economic development. They didn't agree on where the transportation functions should go.

Mrs. Boosalis is leery of creating any more departments, since, she said, she is already considering restructuring her entire administration "to make it tidier."

Job Said Too Big

Councilmen Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta, proponents of a Department of Transportation, said the job was too big to put under another department. They envision the transportation department would handle parking meter revenues, parking garages, traffic engineering, the bus system, pedestrianways, bicycle paths, trains and planes.

Mayor Boosalis said she will wait to see Barton-Aschman's recommendations on the matter, since, she said, "That's why we hired them."

While attempting to define what they wanted the restructured Community Development Department to do, they agreed that the new director will have to be a dynamic person. Cook thinks the city will have to pay between $25,000 and $30,000 a year for the "dynamics."

City officials have felt that the department's greatest weakness has been its neglect of downtown and suburban commercial areas and its concentration on neighborhood development.

Downtown Would Lose

Barton-Aschman consultant Jack Kerry said the downtown will lose a share of its market if surrounding residential areas go to pot. Conversely, he said, if the downtown deteriorates, the neighborhoods will be adversely affected.

"You have to do both," Kerry said.

Kerry warned the council and mayor against loading the department down with administrative employes. There are some 25 in the department now.

When such overloading occurs, Kerry related, the director becomes "more concerned with explaining the last staff meeting than getting out on the street to see what's going on."

As Kerry sees it, the director mainly would be coordinating the activities of various city departments and private agencies in their fight to wipe out blight and reshape various areas of Lincoln.

At Least Three Hurt In Tornado At Arnold

Lincoln Star Special

Arnold — At least three persons were injured west of here Wednesday night when their pickup truck was blown off the highway by a tornado.

The unidentified injured were taken to a Callaway hospital, according to a spokesman at the Arnold police station. Their injuries were not believed serious.

Although several farms in the area about four miles west of Arnold were damaged when the funnel cloud dipped down, no other injuries were reported.

First spotted east of Moorefield near the Lincoln County southern boundary line, the tornado damaged farm buildings and downed power lines in that area, the Lincoln County sheriff's office said.

In its almost straight northerly course, the funnel next touched down near U.S. Highway 30 by Gothenburg, damaging farm buildings and trees.

Three tornadoes were spotted near Farnam in south central Nebraska.

Others were reported near Stockville and Brady, and near Bartley in northeast Red Willow County.

If Women Ruled World . . .

By United Press International

If women ruled the world would it mean an end to war?

Wives of the leaders of Egypt and Israel think so. Some American women believe it would be a more peaceful place. Others disagree.

"Can you imagine battalions of women fighting among themselves?" asked Mrs. Lea Rabin, wife of the Israeli prime minister.

Mrs. Giham Sadat, wife of the Egyptian president, said wars would end only "when women occupy the key posts."

They were in Mexico City Wednesday for the world conference of International Women's Year, sponsored by the United Nations.

"Give us a chance," said Sherry Chenoweth, Minnesota state director of consumer services. "Women are equally susceptible to instincts of avarice and lust for power, although these instincts are more latent because of role playing. There's no question historically that men have made a mess of governing."

Gertrude Schimmel, 56, the highest ranking woman in the New York City police department, said women have a "reverence for life. I just can't see the physical waste of human bodies in wars. I'm a mother, too, and as a mother, I feel there are very few causes that blood should be spilled over."

But Sandra Sandlin, 24, a Dallas summer secretary and high school home economics teacher, said, "If it was some of the women I know, I think they'd probably declare war."

"Women are less likely to see armed conflict as a way of settling a dispute," said Patience Latting, mayor of Oklahoma City. "I believe woman's traditional role has developed qualities of compassion, sensitivity, determination and fortitude."

Faith Whittlesey, 36, a Pennsylvania state legislator, said, "I know that women have many virtues, but I don't think they have a monopoly on virtue."

Ford Wants To Let Business Make, Sell Enriched Uranium

©The New York Times

Washington — President Ford has decided to ask for legislation to allow the production and sale of enriched uranium by private industry, White House officials said Wednesday.

The production of enriched uranium used to fuel nuclear reactors, is now, by law, a government monopoly.

Under Ford's plan, the only three existing production facilities would be kept in government hands. But all future enrichment plants would be built and operated by private owners.

The White House officials described the President's decision as momentous, saying that it had far-reaching economic implications.

Security, Safety Worrisome

Several nuclear-policy experts on Capitol Hill, told about the decision, said the transfer of enriched uranium production to private hands would raise disturbing questions about security and safety.

After some internal administration debate, Ford decided to propose retaining full government control of the existing uranium enrichment facilities at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio, the White House aides reported.

But the total capacity of these facilities has been fully "booked" for the foreseeable future, and it is estimated by the White House that a capital investment of about $30 billion for new facilities will be needed to meet the growing demand for enriched uranium over the next 10 to 15 years.

Higher Levl For Weapons

Enriched uranium is created by increasing the proportion of the easily fissionable isotope U235 in uranium. At a higher level of enrichment than is needed for reactor fuel, the metal can be used as the basis of nuclear weapons.

Ford has determined, the officials said, that the capital investment for new facilities should be borne by private industry rather than by the government. The President was also said to regard the entry of the private sector into nuclear fuel production as a way to reassert strong U.S. influence over world energy prices.

Now, as in all the years since World War II, the United States is by far the most dominant factor in the nuclear fuel field in the non-Communist world. But France and West Germany, among others, have developed their technology to the point where the United States no longer enjoys a monopoly.

Demand Increasing

There has been increased interest in nuclear energy since the Arab oil embargo and the deepening of the world energy crisis, and demand for nuclear fuel has been increasing.

The Energy Research Development Administration has reported that U.S. export sales of enriched uranium were $421 million last year and are expected to reach $5 billion over the next five years.

Domestic demand for nuclear fuel is also expected to rise, making enriched uranium production seemingly a major growth industry.

Consortium Interested

According to a White House source, at least one consortium, Uranium Enrichment Associates, which includes the Bechtel Corp. and the Goodyear Corp., has expressed interest in building a plant for the production of enriched uranium by gaseous diffusion within the next eight years. Other companies are reportedly considering construction of plants for the more advanced technique of gas centrifuge production.

The Bechtel-Goodyear consortium has reportedly taken an option on land near Dothan, Ala., and has taken steps toward acquring the large supplies of electricity required for the gaseous diffusion process.

The White House source said the consortium evisaged a large facility about the size of one of the three existing enrichment plants. Such a facility would cost close to $3 billion, the official said.

Several staff officials on Capitol Hill said Wednesday that the entry of private industry into enriched uranium production could pose serious dangers.

One worry, they said, was the possibility that uranium of the grade needed to make weapons may fall into the wrong hands.

They asserted that while it was difficult to enrigh uranium to the point where it could be used as a nuclear fuel, once it reached that level it was not difficult to enrich it further to higher, weapons-grade levels.

These critics also said that the safety record of private industry in the nuclear field was questionable. But the White House officials said the government would still exercise control over the materials and impose safety standards.

Howling Winds Stir Up Sand, Dust In California

INDIO, Calif (AP) — Scores of motorists sought to recover Wednesday from fierce winds that stirred up deadly dust and stinging sands 250 miles apart in Southern California

Officials blamed the dust storm, which sprang without warning in the Bakersfield area 100 miles north of Los Angeles, with at least one traffic death and more than a dozen injuries in a series of car accidents

Meanwhile, in desert country, the California Highway Patrol (CHP) said no injuries or traffic accidents had occurred but cars trapped by the instant sand dunes looked as if they had been sandblasted

Some of about 50 vehicles trapped for up to 12 hours had windshields and chrome pitifully pitted and paint jobs "ground clear down to the bare metal " reported Robert Lytal of the CHP office at Indio

The Bakersfield storm was over in about three hours Tuesday night after striking by surprise along U S 99 That area, barren except for some farms is known for blowing dust

In the desert, however sands still swirled into Wednesday afternoon although with less force than gusts clocked at 80 miles an hour at one point A huge cloud of sand blanketed the Palm Springs Indio region

' You can t see the sun because of the swirling sand, the CHP's Lytal said at noon

An armada of tow trucks dug into the sand drifts — which reached up to five feet — to untrap vehicles abandoned on roadways.

The CHP closed about 30 miles of Interstate 10 — a major link between Los Angeles and Arizona — and a connecting route for a number of hours.

Unlike the Bakersfield case, motorists in the desert had been warned by large posted signs not to use the highways Officials said those who ignored the advice mainly came from out of the area, unused to the frequent sand storms

But officials said it might have been the worst sand storm to hit the area in a century — and maybe ever The CHP said cautiously it was at least the worst for a half decade

Oldtimer Jack Oberle of Palm Springs, a resident for 40 years, declared, "This is the worse sand storm I've ever seen since I've been here "

"This looks like a blizzard, but it's a sand one, not snow, ' said Ruth Hoskins, assistant manager of a Palm Springs restaurant

Kern County Coroner Richard Gervais identified the Bakersfield area victim as Bobby Joe Sisco, 35, of Hollywood, formerly of Cape Girardeau, Mo , who was trapped in the back seat when the car he was in rammed a truck in the blinding dust The driver and another passenger fled uninjured, but Sisco was killed when a second truck plowed into the rear of the crippled auto

Famine Ravaging Cambodia

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Famine is reported ravaging Cambodia and South Vietnam's new rulers say starvation is a major problem in Saigon.

Some relief officials and Western diplomats here estimate more than one million Cambodians — an eighth of the country's population — may die of starvation or hunger-related diseases in the next 18 months.

"Thousands will die from primitive shelter, no mosquito nets, poor water and no medical care," said a relief worker. "People will not starve to death because they will not live long enough to starve.

"They'll succumb to all the illnesses that a person weakened from hunger would normally die from "

A United Nations official predicted a major disaster in Cambodia unless the country receives food aid and is able to distribute it

A report in Tuesday's London Daily Telegraph said starving Cambodians were eating jungle berries, roots and all available animals The report said cholera has reached epidemic proportions and transportation has halted because of a lack of fuel

When the Khmer Rouge took over in mid-April half the provinces were out of rice and many other areas had not been planted because of poor security. US officials then said Phnom Penh had only enough rice to feed its two million population for little over a month

Soon after the takeover, the Khmer Rouge began to evict whole populations of cities and towns into the countryside in an effort to establish a "peasants' revolution "

Refugees said many of the old, sick and very young died of hunger or thirst on the long treks and anyone caught running away or hiding in the jungle was shot on the spot by the Khmer Rouge

In South Vietnam, Liberation radio said· "The problem of starvation in Saigon . . which is prevailing now is one of the most cruel consequences caused by the neocolonial economic policy of the American imperialists and their lackeys "

Kissinger Pledges U.S. Won't Run Out On Asia

©The New York Times

New York — Secretary of State Henry A Kissinger pledged Wednesday night that despite recent serbacks in Indochina, the United States "will not turn away from Asia" and will continue to oppose efforts by any state to impose its will by force on the Asian continent

Kissinger's speech also came on a day when the Soviet Union disclosed that it had cautioned the Japanese not to conclude a treaty with China incorporating a clause aimed at limiting Soviet influence in Asia. Peking had sought to include such a clause in a treaty of peace and friendship that is currently under negotiation with Tokyo

Much of Kissinger's speech to the Japan Society, a nonprofit organization formed to increase understanding between Japan and the United States, was devoted to relations between the two countries

He said that "we will permit no question to arise about the firmness of our treaty commitments" to Japan and other Asian allies Specifically, he said the United States was "resolved to maintain the peace and security of the Korean peninsula, for this is of crucial importance to Japan and to all of Asia "

In the text of his speech released in advance, Kissinger seemed, however, to chide South Korea and the Philippines for their repressive policies

Biggest Improvement On Record Shown In Balance Of Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's balance of payments showed the biggest improvement on record during the first three months of this year, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday

The account was still in deficit by $475 million but it was a marked drop from the $6 57 billion deficit in the last three months of 1974

The balance of payment accounts measures the movement of money across national boundaries The latest figures meant more dollars were staying home to fuel the U S economy

In another report, the Commerce Department said total personal income of Americans jumped by the biggest amount in eight months during May The increase amounted to $9 3 billion, or a 0 7% jump to an annual rate of $1,211 9 billion, after seasonal adjustment The increase was attributed largely to a stronger private sector of the economy

The increase was the biggest since a $10 8 billion jump last September Wages and salaries in private industry also rose by the biggest amount since September, climbing $3 4 billion In other economic developments Wednesday

—C L Dennis, president of the Brotherhood of Railways and Airline Clerks, said a strike of many of the nation's railroads appears likely at 12 01 a m Monday

—New claims for state unemployment benefits continued to rise during the week ending June 7 by 83,900 to a total of 443,000, the Labor Department said

The swing in the balance of payments account was sharper than the record established when the accounts dropped into deficit by $2 4 billion in the second quarter of last year after a $1 6 billion surplus

The key factors in the latest change were the first quarterly trade surplus in over a year and a $3 4 billion reduction in the rate at which investment flowed overseas

Speaker Albert, Freshmen Closer

Washington (UPI) — Speaker Carl Albert and dissident Democratic freshmen members agreed Wednesday they have differences on how the House should be run, but that it is more important to join battle against President Ford and his vetoes.

"We had an excellent discussion and the only thing we are upset over is the fact that a veto-prone president has such strong backing from one-third of the House," Albert said after a two-hour private meeting with some 35 of the 75 freshmen members.

"We're much closer now than we were two hours ago," said Rep. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., spokesman for the freshmen, after taking a list of six "suggestions" for changes in House operations to Albert and the rest of the leadership.

"They accepted all our suggestions," said Tsongas. Albert said, "That's right, we accepted them in a general sense."

Rep. Bob Carr, D-Mich., the only freshman publicly calling for Albert's resignation as speaker, was included in the delegation but reportedly did not raise that issue.

Carr said earlier he would "listen and watch," and that "I'll ask for a private meeting late to explain to the speaker my reasons."

The suggestions included a five-day work week, rather than the three or four days the House usually works.

"I've always favored a five-day work week. I'm here every Friday — in fact every Saturday and Sunday," said Albert.

The freshmen also wanted the speaker to issue a priority list of party-backed legislation at the start of each year and then keep track of who votes which way on it. No mention was made of punishment for defectors but before his meeting with the delegation, Albert said, "They don't want a speaker. They want a bouncer."

Rep. William Brodhead, D-Mich., freshman representative on the policy and steering committee which recommends party policy to the Democratic caucus, said, "I'm not unhappy. I think some progress has been made."

Other suggestions were for better "communication" between the leadership and rank and file Democrats with "free-wheeling exchange of views," and designation of a spokesman to go before the "national media" to give the Democratic side of major legislative issues.

Albert and the freshmen agreed that Ford's vetoes are their main problem.

"Ford is a sign-nothing president," said Rep. John Burton, D-Calif. Rep. Edward Pattison, D-N.Y., said Ford is "the abominable 'no' man."

Wallace Intends To Be 'Involved' In 1976

©The New York Times

Washington — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama inched a little closer to announcing his candidacy for president Wednesday, promising a cheering audience here that he intended to be "involved" in the 1976 campaign.

At the end of a 45-minute speech in which he flailed away at the "elitists" he said were "trying to grind down the middle class," the Alabama governor declared:

"My intention at this time is that I am going to be involved in 1976. Of course, I reserve the right to change our mind. I will have a more formal announcement sometime at a later date."

Wallace brought repeated applause from about 1,000 delegates to a convention of the National Federation of Independent Business by assailing "the exotic noise-makers of the new left," the press, especially the New York Times, the "permissiveness of the courts" and "the welfare mess."

He also responded, a bit more specifically than in the past, to the increasing volume of criticism directed toward him by liberal elements of the Democratic Party.

Replying to Sen. Thomas H. McIntyre's assertion that Wallace offers only criticisms, not solutions, the governor said of the New Hampshire legislator: "It's pretty hard to find solutions to clean up the mess that he and his colleagues have created."

The central issue of next year's presidential campaign, Wallace said, will be "the survival of the middle class." He told the businessmen that their voices would be heard in 1976, even if he should be unable to run.

'Bo' Callaway To Head Ford's 1976 Campaign

©The New York Times

Washington — President Ford announced Wednesday that Howard H. "Bo" Callaway would resign as secretary of the Army to become chairman of the President's 1976 election campaign.

The designation of Callaway, a Georgia conservative, ended a search by Ford for a full-time campaign director with conservative credentials but only limited ties to the 1972 campaign of President Nixon.

It also constituted Ford's first formal step to enter the contest for election to a full-term in the White House.

Ron Nessen, the White House spokesman, said Ford would make a public statement sometime next month to outline the theme of his first national candidacy.

Callaway issued a statement pledging "an open, candid and straightforward campaign" on behalf of the President.

AMA To Increase Dues

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The American Medical Association, facing a financial crisis, voted Wednesday to more than double the dues of its members, from $110 to $250.

"The association is not bankrupt, but successive years of deficit spending have depleted its reserves," a special committee reported.

The AMA board of trustees had recommended the increase to $250, but the special committee recommended to the House of Delegates a lesser increase of $200 next January and $225 the following January.

Members overruled the special committee and chose the higher figure.

Beer's Best

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — It's a beer drinker's world.

That was the message — more or less — from several experts at a symposium on the medical hazards of travel at the American Medical Association convention here Wednesday.

Beer was hailed as a universally safe substitute for water and other liquids that can cause the malady called tourista, or the trots.

"In my experience involving some 60 countries, there is no bad beer produced anywhere in the world. The field is too competitive," said Dr. B. H. Kean of the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

"Beer is one of the best things to prevent dehydration because you get salt, too," said Dr. Martin S. Wolfe, the U.S. State Department's specialist in tropical medicine.

"Drink it out of the bottle, don't pour it in a glass (which might be dirty)," added an Army zoologist, Col. James Burke of the Walter Reed Medical Center. "Beer does another good thing. It keeps your kidneys open."

The experts said well-boiled tea and bottled, carbonated soda and water were also safe in most foreign countries, but they gave their warmest endorsement to beer.

Wolfe said sanitary conditions in Western Europe and Japan were "essentially the same as traveling in the United States."

But when voyaging elsewhere, the experts recommended a laundry list of precautions including:

— Avoid all fruit that can't be peeled;

— Avoid salads and fresh vegetables. Kean suggested facetiously, "Sterilize them with a blow torch; if this is not convenient, then leave them as table decorations."

— Eat meat only when it is well-cooked.

"If you eat a raw beefsteak in Ethiopia, you're going to get a tapeworm for sure," said Burke. "But if you cook it thoroughly, all you're going to have is a little extra protein in that meat."

Prince Beheaded For Killing King

Riyadh, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A young Saudi prince knelt at the chopping block Wednesday and was publicly beheaded with one swipe of a gold-handled sword for the assassination of his uncle, King Faisal. Thousands chanted "Allah Akbar" — God is great — and "Justice is done."

Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed, 27, had been judged guilty by a Sharia, or religious court, of assassinating his uncle as the monarch celebrated the Moslem feast of the Prophet Mohammed's birthday last March 25.

The American-educated prince was led out of the jail behind the government palace into Dira Square. An official of the court faced him and read the guilty verdict, then invoked "heaven's mercy" for the convicted man.

Prince Faisal appeared calm. His hands were tied behind his back, but he was not blindfolded.

As the prince knelt, a security man prodded him in the side with a stick so that his head jerked upward. The executioner, a black Saudi in a yellow Galabiya robe, brought the sword flashing down and decapitated him. Blood spattered on the dusty pavement.

The assassin's head was hoisted briefly on a wooden stake and displayed to the applauding crowd.

Immediately afterward, the head and body were placed on a stretcher and carried away for burial in an unmarked grave — the same simple Islamic interment given to the assassinated monarch.

A brief radio announcement said the "execution was carried out . . . for commiting the crime of killing His Majesty King Faisal . . . which was a loss to the Arab nation and to Islam."

The prince was the first member of the Saudi royal family ever executed in public. The only member of the royal family who witnessed the execution was Prince Salman, younger brother of King Faisal. He is the governor of Riyadh.

King Faisal, whose age was listed as 69 or 70, was shot at close range before a horrified group of Saudi officials and a visiting Kuwaiti delegation. He died almost immediately, though he was taken to an hospital in a desperate attempt to revive him.

Leadership Is Part Of It

Carl Albert's hold on the speakership seems safe for the time being as a freshman-led rebellion against the House majority leadership has apparently failed.

Deciding that what ails the Congress — more specifically, the large Democratic majority which is supposed to control it — is not all the leadership's fault, it has been tentatively decided that what is needed is a new program of legislative work appealing enough to be enacted and other sprucing up of the congressional image.

Albert of Oklahoma and his lieutenants and Mike Mansfield of Montana in the Senate have provided nice-guy, low-key leadership for years. They are usually called upon to provide a respectable, generally moderate opposition counterpoint to policies or programs enunciated by the past two Republican administrations. No one could accuse them of being anything other than "loyal" opposition. But we would guess that even the freshmen Democrats are so sufficiently imbued with respect for congressional sacred cows that they cannot clearly understand what real leadership, which has been lacking, might have accomplished. It might have resulted in better programs to start with, than the Ways and Means Committee's punchless energy package for example, and it might have successfully avoided the organizational decisions which now tarnish the congressional image.

Clearly, the majority horde has not been properly harnessed and driven, at least so far as its performance would redound to the credit of the majority party. Especially in the House, where the majority is impotent compared to its potential and in the face of efforts by a not particularly active or creative President.

Another problem with Congress in the eyes of the people is the image of it being run as a country club with members working for the public on a part-time basis. The recent millions of dollars in fringe benefits it has alloted members and their staffs and the vacation schedule this year attest to a cavalier running of the ship.

Just returned from the Memorial Day recess, congressmen are now only days away from a ten-day Independence Day recess, which precedes the long summer vacation, which comes before the Congress goes home for Labor Day, Columbus Day, etc. There is a move afoot to cut back the July 4 holiday from ten days to four days. That apparently is seen by young Democrats as the alternative to deposing Albert and starting over.

Although the wind shifts quickly, we don't imagine the Congress is yet in much of a mood to go along with a reduced vacation schedule. But such trivial items, put all together, lessens the Congress in the public's eyes and makes it all the more difficult for members to argue convincingly that they belong to a responsible and productive arm of government.

Some day the long recesses and back door pay raises will catch up with them.

The Grain Scandal

Grain Belt farmers are rightly concerned about comments from foreign buyers who complain of receiving dirty, adulterated, or damaged grain from this country. Some of the buyers have said they would rather deal with Brazil or European nations for grain.

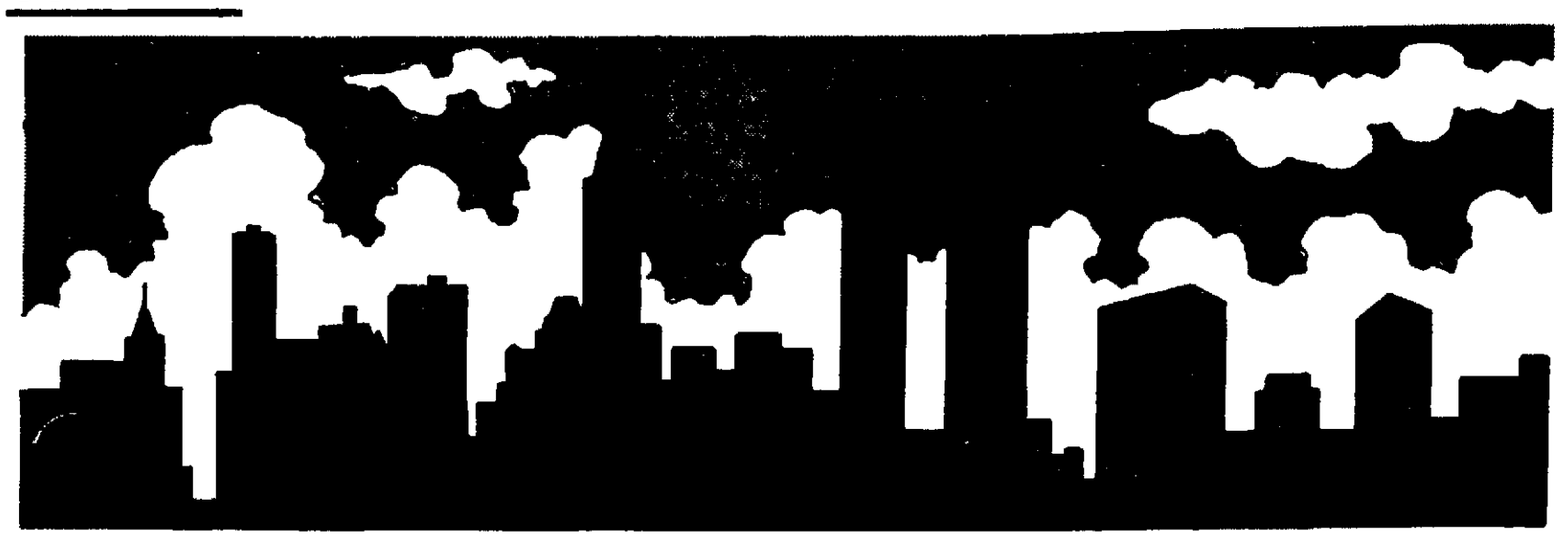
The complaints — not new by any means — have been traced to allegations of shortweighting and adulteration (the latter not illegal under some circumstances) of outgoing shipments at export terminals. Damage due to loading techniques and dirty cargo ships are also reported. And the situation is topped by the revelation that inspectors have been bribed or intimidated to keep quiet.

Rep. Charley Thone, R-Neb., has along with other area congressmen voiced concern that the reputation of American grain producers is hostage to the practices of "unscrupulous grain dealers." He promises to initiate legislation which would make certain of the questionable adulterating practices illegal. Nebraska Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher talks about the need for a more closely controlled system of inspection, either implemented directly by the federal government or through contract arrangements with the states. Morris Van Kirk of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, observing that such allegations against exporters with resulting damage to the reputation of American farmers have been kicking around for some years, suggests that the problem is a proper subject for a congressional investigation.

Some change in the system is very obviously necessary. American grain is of high quality when it leaves the farm. It is just not right that the reputations of its producers should suffer when lesser quality shipments are received by purchasers abroad because of the unethical actions of people on down the line. And of course in terms of dollars and cents, the situation is critical. The export market is vital to the health of the American farm economy and comments like the recent ones from grain purchasers abroad can have a depressing effect on that market.

BOB CONSIDINE

He'll Take Gotham Any Day



NEW YORK — The financial plight of New York City has caused wicked ridicule in Chicago and other big and little cities in the nation, according to a good reportorial wrap-up by The New York Times. But here and there, there is compassion, too, the same poll indicates. The probable truth is that in his heart of hearts, no red-blooded American wants to see Fun City revert to the Indians for $24.

Fifty dollars? Well, that might be different — the way things have been going.

Not many hostile columnists, editorial writers and cartoonists have taken into consideration the fact that their own cities would long since have become ghost towns if they had had to pay for 1,250,000 on welfare and support 15 public hospitals. Chicago, for example, has its welfare tabs picked up by the State of Illinois and the Feds. It has only one public hospital.

A standard rap on New York is that its streets are not safe to walk at night, yet there are more people afoot after dark than the entire populations of all but a handful of U.S. cities. The crime rate is generally lower than almost anywhere else, notably the rates of Washington, D.C., and Detroit.

I've always contended that New York is a great place to live but I'd sure hate to visit here. That puts me out of step with a multitude of Americans. Whether they acknowledge it or not, they enjoy themselves immensely when they get a chance to visit our fair city.

For example, last year a million and a quarter visitors spent a billion and a quarter in New York City, rode its 236 miles of subway track, trod its 6,000 miles of streets and avenues.

Convention visitors filled its 100,000 first-class hotel rooms, spent $313 a head while in town, (outside of their hotels) and took in wonders they'll never forget. Their favorite 15 pursuits were made up of visits to the Statue of Liberty, the U.N., our matchless museums, theaters, unparalleled restaurants, cruises around Manhattan and the world's last great nickel ride — the ferry boat to Staten Island. They went to the top of the Empire State Building, the topless towers of the World Trade Center, to Times Square, Shea Stadium, Madison Square Garden, the Met, and great television networks, our superb cathedrals and temples, Wall Street, and parks that put all others to shame.

It is a city you can visit best by leaving your car at home, the only one of its kind in the U S It has endless buses, the aforementioned subways, and more taxis than most of the major cities of the U.S. combined.

You can find a skycap at John F Kennedy or LaGuardia, whereas that species seems to have become extinct at Chicago's O'Hare and most other air terminals

It is the greatest shopping center on earth, renowned for the most expensive and the least costly items. A visitor can pull a dollar dress off a rack in Union Square or buy Tiffany's $5,000,000 canary-tinted diamond.

New Yorkers as a rule have less ostentatious civic pride than the people of Moose Jaw or Jackass Flats. We never get around to noting that Cincinnati was never able to finish a subway it started, and the Washington, D.C., subway is on the brink of going bust a year before it is scheduled to open. We have commendable reticence about mentioning that we have two big league ball clubs now engaged in winning streaks, and that the first horseracing of a Sunday afternoon in our history — last Sunday at Belmont — drew 40,000 people who bet more than $4,000,000. Our Off Track Betting shops handle sums that would have caused Croesus to faint dead away.

Occasionally, a New Yorker fights back against the tide of abuse. It was Bugs Baer, I think, who said, "Once you go through the Holland Tunnel, it's all Bridgeport." And George M Cohan who might have observed, "When you leave New York, you're camping out.

The New Yorker magazine years ago told of a bum who was aroused in a Bowery gutter by an offended cop. "Look atcha!" the cop said, as he pulled the derelict to his feet. "Look what New York did to you. Get outta town and get a fresh start."

The bum shook his head, "No," he husked, "I'll never leave New York."

"Why?" the cop yelled.

"Because you can buy things late here," the man said with great dignity.

Then there was Toots Shor's reply to a tribute paid to Madison, Wis., by Tom Coleman, the late great GOP leader from that state. Tom said, as he sawed away at one of Toots' steaks, that in Madison, Wis., he could get a steak that could be cut by a butter knife — and go to bed that night to sleep the peace of a man who knew he had eaten the finest steak in the world

"Fine," Toots said. "But when you wake up in the morning, Tom, you're still in Madison, Wisconsin."

Setting An Example

Lincoln, Neb.

I have been a school teacher, teaching young people what I think is the right thing to do, to follow the rules, obey the laws, etc But how can young people be instructed to do the right thing when it is apparent some adults defy the law?

As a concerned citizen, I have been following articles in the newspaper dealing with the dispute over the street at 39th and Calvert. If I understand the articles correctly, it had to be taken to court for these people to have their rights to their property which, in my opinion, should have been given to them in the first place without the expense and trouble of having to take it to court.

The articles also stated that the city had to pay for damages, but isn't this really our money paid through taxes? A more recent news article shows that the city is now apparently defying the court order.

If leaders are defying the court, how can we as adults expect, in return, the youth who are our future leaders to have good values and obey the laws?!

Mental Health Strides

Cozad, Neb.

The results of the questionnaire The Star printed June 11 on mental health were disappointing, though not surprisingly so. Seven concerned citizens responded, probably seven of the most open-minded people of Nebraska.

We no longer live in the dark ages and yet people still fear discussions on mental health. Defining abnormal behavior in our complexly organized society is a bit difficult, mainly because our democratic social structure has made allowances for almost any type of non-violent behavior. If one is a nudist, we have nudist colonies. If one is an introvert by philosophy, this is acceptable. But when the associates, friends or relatives of a person observe a drastic and most often irrational change in this person, abnormal behavior is probably distinguishable and should be dealt with.

In my opinion, mental health must be strived for on a day-to-day basis, referring to the belief that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. There would be no so-called psychopaths in this country if concerned citizens helped their troubled neighbors before they flipped out completely.

The social sciences are relatively young and need community support. Nebraskans are somewhat more acculturated in mental health services than many states and yet we are still far behind in achieving total community support. Humanitarians are needed more than anything.

Criticism Of Judiciary System

Lincoln, Neb.

I am sick and appalled by the recent sentencing decisions made by Lancaster County District Judge Samuel Van Pelt.

"Justice" reflects the irony of reality when a man is sentenced to 5-10 years in the penitentiary for robbery (Robert Beardsley, Star, June 11, firearms charge dismissed) in the same courtroom, during the same court session wherein another man is sentenced to 15 years for murder by stabbing (Alvaro Escamilla, Star, June 11).

My horror of the judiciary system and police state is accepted paranoid behavior by the majority of the population. Why do we tolerate it?

A hope that Mr. Beardsley and Judge Van Pelt will both realize justice some day is only fitting.

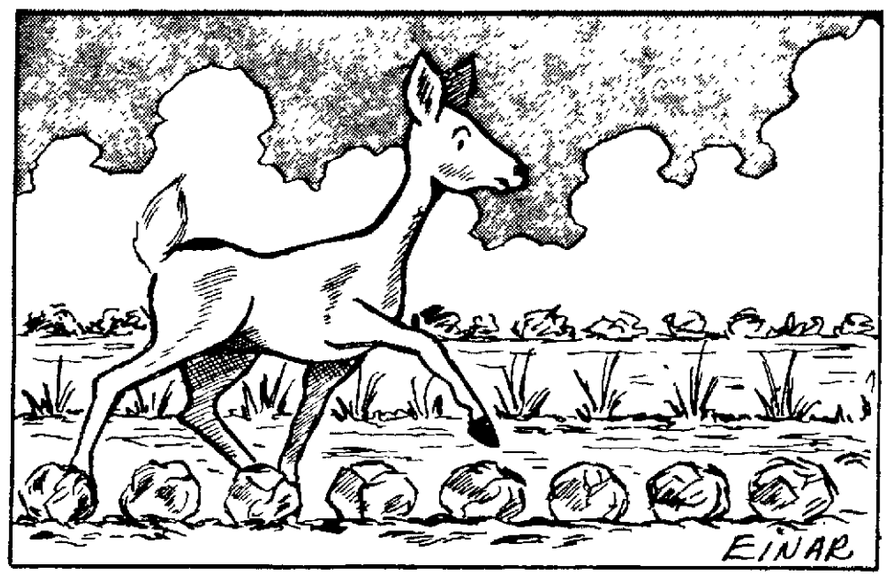
Patchwork Prairie Country



Today I was shopping through a nursery department in the city looking for an extra packet of seed to plant in the ground where the radishes and onions had somehow disappeared via our open mouths, hungry for the taste of spring.

Perhaps I haven't been keeping up with the new garden plants that are being developed, so I was surprised to see yellow beets. For a moment I thought it would be sort of an adventure to plant such a vegetable, then I decided to bypass the packets of seed. Somehow the yellow beets on the packet just didn't look right . . . not at all appetizing and I found myself wrinkling my nose and saying, "Yellow beets! Not for me!"

I purchased lima beans, giant improved bush limas and will be satisfied if they are half as big as they appear in the picture. I have found pictures to be very misleading, or perhaps I should say my gardening is never quite up to the picturesque portraits I see.

But the cutworms always come up to expectation. One day when I had finished tilling the garden, the robins were busy for hours, hopping over the ground I had worked, pecking in the soil and flying to their nest of young with a beak filled with tasty morsels of cutworms. The worms were numerous on the ground where I had worked and I was more than happy to have them help me rid the garden of pests.

One robin, however, dropped a cherry from a nearby overhead branch where I worked. A very old cherry tree has cherries on one branch. Although some of the cherries were wormy, I did have plans to pick enough for a pie provided I could find enough plump cherries minus the worms for a pie.

The robin needed cherries to balance the diet, no doubt. Too many worms wriggling down the gullet soon spoil the appetite.

☆ ☆ ☆

If the worms were as polite as the deer that roam in my garden, we would live in harmony. After the last rain I saw deer tracks imprinted in the mud. As the deer strolled through the area, it gingerly stepped over the row of beets, across the small late onions that were just peeping through the ground and over the tomatoes. It narrowly missed stepping on a tomato that is about ten inches tall . . . its hoofprint coming down next to the stem but nary a branch was broken. It walked along the length of another tomato patch that is blooming in great style but left every one standing without a nibble. Young, tender asparagus plants were pock-marked with tracks but not one had been stepped upon A very polite deer!

However, a neighbor lady who stopped by was looking at my late-blooming peonies and noticed the odd shape of the flowers . . . lopsided, so to speak. Upon further investigation, we noticed many of the buds, still tightly rolled, had been eaten on the one side and nibbled whole-heartedly on the tops.

We decided the deer had eaten the flower buds . . . quite a particular deer who preferred the flowers. I now think of the deer as "Bambi" who also preferred the flowers.

The neighbor said a deer and fawn had been seen at our north corner field . . . the fawn gingerly stepping behind its mother as they walked across the length of the field. They were on their way to a shelter of trees that grow beside a stream nearby.

One night The Farmer and I heard a strange bawl, more delicate than that of a young calf, coming from the Big Pond. The sound drifted on the still early evening air to the farmyard. We decided it must have been the cry of a fawn since a doe and fawn lived near the area last summer.

I am willing to share my garden with a deer provided it continues to step gingerly through the vegetables. However, now as I think about the subject, I suppose I have no choice.

If it decides to nibble along the way, it will do so. The beans are so succulent and lush, the tomatoes so vigorous, the carrots so ferny. I wonder if a "No Tresspassing" sign would eliminate the problem.

Read Letter Days

WASHINGTON — In outright violation of the law, military counter-intelligence teams for years opened and read the mail of suspects

This "flap and seal" operation, as it was called, rarely turned up any spies or criminals. It was used largely to snoop on servicemen who had complained about the Vietnam war.

Evidence that the Pentagon tampered with the mails has been offered to the select Senate committee which is investigating the excesses of the CIA, FBI and other government gumshoes.

The "flap and seal" term goes back to an earlier day when mail was surreptitiously steamed open and sealed again. But the Pentagon snoops pried into military mail by a more intricate technique called "rolling." Two prongs resembling knitting needles were used to slip letters from envelopes without breaking the flap seals.

Our sources told us, parenthetically, that the more resourceful Central Intelligence Agency has developed a machine that can read mail right through the envelopes. Electric waves penetrate the paper, scanning each layer and picking out the ink marks. Then the letter is reassembled electronically.

The counter-intelligence teams, operating in strict secrecy, opened military mail both within the United States and at overseas bases. The practice was more blatant, however, outside the country.

"As soon as an American leaves the United States, the intelligence authorities think he loses all his constitutional rights," said one source

The snooping became so widespread, military sources told us, that letters stacked up faster than they could be read. Tapes of bugged conversations also accumulated

In most cases, the justification for the snooping was minimal, our sources say. Some people had their mail read simply because they had sensitive assignments.

Our sources recall the case of an American agent for the supersecret Army Security Agency. Its operations were being spied upon by an even more secret Army counter-intelligence team.

The security man, bored with his work on the West German side of the Czechoslovakian border, sneaked across for a holiday in Prague. He played cat-and-mouse with the Czech authorities and had a brief, volcanic affair with a Czech beauty. Then he slipped back into West Germany.

But unknown to him, the counter-intelligence sleuths were reading his mail. They found out about his romantic interlude when he received a letter from his Czech girl friend asking when he planned to return to Prague.

The government's habit of prying into people's mail, in disregard of the law, is one of the abuses the Senate committee is supposed to investigate. But our sources say the leads often aren't followed up for lack of competent investigators.

In other cases, lawyers who came to the committee from federal agencies simply call their contacts in the intelligence services, obtain a denial of wrongdoing and call this an "investigation."

Footnote: A committee spokesman gave us this statement: "We are looking into mail opening, whether it involves the Defense Department, CIA, IRS or anybody else in government. We also regard the opening of U.S. mail overseas as a domestic matter."

Corps Reduces Papillion Dams

Omaha (AP) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers announced Wednesday plans for a drastic reduction in the number of flood control dams to be constructed along the Papillion Creek Watershed.

Corps officials said the action resulted from a technical reappraisal of the Papillion Creek and Tributaries Lakes Project.

The revised plans call for the continuation of land acquisition and construction on Dam 10 on the Little Papillion Creek, but the postponement of construction on the dams planned for the West Branch Papillion Creek basin, while a reformulation plan is completed.

Three new plans for flood control along the Big Papillion Creek will be discussed during a public hearing next week.

Corps officials said two significant factors weighed in the re-evaluation:

— The major increases in land and construction costs since the authorization of the project seven years ago.

— And, the effects of flood plain regulations adopted by the City of Omaha on the economic justification for the project.

Col. Russell A. Glenn, district engineer, said the plan, which was authorized in 1968, was based on a limited degree of flood plain regulations.

However, in 1973, the Congress passed a law requiring local governmental units to adopt flood plain regulations by July of this year.

Adoption of those regulations is required to make communities elgible for flood insurance and other federal assistance programs, Glenn said.

Omaha adopted regulations on flood plain construction last October, and the adoption reduces the potential for future flood damages by precluding the development below the 100 year flood level, Glenn added.

This is turn reduces the future accural of flood control benefits from the project, he said.

Meanwhile, the Papio Valley Preservation Association, a group which has opposed much of the Corps' previous planning, appeared happy about the announced cutback.

However, the reduction in plans will not stop the association's court case against the Corps, said Bob Gottsch of Elkhorn, association president.

Gottsch said the proposed revisions do not erase all of the association's objections, adding that his group will continue to push for a widening and deepening of the Papio channels to contain flood waters instead of building dams.

Gottsch noted that the Congress has ordered that flood control be completed by the cheapest effective method, and that the least expensive way would be channelization.

The association has filed suit in federal court in an attempt to halt the construction of Dam No. 10.

Charges Filed In Double Fatality

Kearney (AP) — A felony charge of motor vehicle homicide was filed Wednesday against Juan E. Hernandez, 21, of Kearney in connection with an accident that took two lives. Victims of the mishap north of Kearney last Thursday were Robert Bednar, 47, of Sumner and William McDonald, 46, of Geneva, occupants of a pickup truck. Hernandez was driving a gravel truck at a spot where work was under way on the highway. Officers said witnesses related the gravel truck left the road, started back and landed on top of the pickup.

Courthouse Election Reversal Asked

Madison (AP) — Madison County District Court has been asked to reverse a decision by county commissioners setting a special election on the site of the county courthouse. George Moyer Jr. filed the petition, representing a group of citizens wanting to keep the courthouse in Madison, rather than move it to Norfolk. The court gave the county commissioners until July 14 to file an answer to the petition. Commissioners earlier had set July 29 as the date for the special election.

Sheriff Sued In Loss Of Gamecocks

Papillion (AP) — Jerry Marco, a figure in a Sarpy County cockfight raid four months ago, has sued Sheriff Pat Thomas for damages, including the loss of six gamecocks which died while being held as state's evidence. Marco's Sarpy County suit places total value of the birds at $600. The petition seeks $1,457 of Sheriff Thomas, Deputies Lee Polikov and Danny Jackson and their bonding company. The three men were present at the Feb. 15 raid which ended in County Court dismissals.

Painters Reject Contract Offer

Omaha (AP) — Business representative Marion Goodwin said Painters Local 109 Tuesday night rejected a contract offer from the Omaha chapter of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America. He said the vote was 78 to 43 against the contract. Contractors offered an immediate 70-cent-an-hour increase, raising base pay to $8.60 an hour, an 8.9% hour increase, with raises based on increases in the Cost of Living Index June 1 of 1976 and 1977. Union officials have said they want a $1-an-hour raise now, with cost-of-living increases the next two years or pay hikes of 85 cents an hour, whichever is greater.

Real Estate Laws Shield Realtors From Public, Too

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's real estate laws shield realtors from the unscrupulous public as well as protect the public from conniving real estate agents.

Bernard Hardesty, first district member of the Nebraska Real Estate Commission, told Lincoln realtors Wednesday they should not allow themselves to be blackmailed.

People often threaten to report a realtor to the commission, Hardesty said, unless he or she agrees to perform some type of service.

"This is a massive problem," he said, and a number of agents "are giving up money to keep somebody off (their) backs.

Don't Be 'Blackmailed'

"Don't let yourself be blackmailed," he reiterated. If a formal complaint is sent in, the respondent has an opportunity to submit an answer before the complaint is investigated and either dismissed or set for hearing.

Of 66 serious complaints submitted to the Real Estate Commission last year, 22 resulted in action, Hardesty said. Twelve brokers were severely censored; four brokers' licenses were revoked; three salesmen's licenses were revoked; one appraiser's license was revoked; five brokers and four salesmen were suspended for periods of from seven days to one year.

Percentage-wise, the 22 persons disciplined represent only about 0.2% of the estimated 10,000 brokers, salesmen and appraisers in the state.

Hardesty said the majority of complaints phoned in or mailed to the commission are civil matters and do not involve violations of the 1973 Nebraska Real Estate License Act.

Paul Quinlan, executive director of the commission, estimated "conservatively" that the commission fields between 400 and 500 telephone calls a year from people contemplating filing complaints.

But only one of every four complaint forms mailed out are ever returned, he said.

Two Responsibilities

When a formal complaint is filed, Quinlan explained, the commission has two responsibilities: one is to protect the public and the second is to protect the realtor from "undue harassment and guarantee him due process."

In citing examples of complaints phoned in, Quinlan recalled a conversation last week with an angry buyer.

The person complained that he had instructed the realtor to write up an offer of $20,000 for a house listed for $25,000. But at the same time, the buyer had confided to the realtor that he didn't want the house to be sold out from under him and he was willing to pay as much as $23,000.

When the realtor returned with the owner's counter offer of $23,000, the buyer was angry. He figured the realtor had told the owner that he was willing to pay so the realtor could get his commission on the additional $3,000.

Broker's Obligation

It's a case where the buyer didn't understand the law, Quinlan said. "If the broker knows you would pay $23,000, he is obligated by law to tell the owner you would pay $23,000."

After all, "the real estate broker works for the seller unless he is retained by the buyer to find a house."

Both Hardesty and Quinlan stressed that complaints do not become part of a realtor's permanent file and that previous complaints or disciplinary action are not taken into account during hearings.

Complaints are decided on the evidence alone, Quinlan said. Until the hearing is set, even the commissioners do not know the identity of the person filing the complaint or the respondent.

Wahoo Attorney Fined $10,000 In Tax Evasion

Omaha — Clyde R. Worrall, a Wahoo attorney, Wednesday was fined the maximum $10,000, sentenced to a five-year suspended prison term and placed on probation for five years on a tax evasion charge.

The sentence was handed down by U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney.

Worrall had been indicted by a federal grand jury in Omaha Dec. 18, 1974, for attempting to evade his income taxes for the years 1969 through 1971. The indictment charged that Worrall failed to report income of $36,700 during the three-year period, resulting in his attempting to evade $13,715 in federal income taxes.

In addition to the fine and sentence, Worrall will be liable for the income taxes and civil penalties determined to be due, authorities said.

During sentencing, Judge Denney said that if ever there were time in the history of this country when laws should be upheld, it is now. He added that lawyers should be the ones to set the example; otherwise, "our democracy is in serious trouble."

Omaha Store Guilty Of Obscenity Charges

Omaha (AP) — A Municipal Court jury of one man and five women Tuesday found Downtown Books Inc. of Omaha guilty of 14 counts of distributing obscene materials.

Downtown Books Inc. owns and operates an adult book and magazine store.

Asst. City Prosecutor Richard Dunning charged that 14 magazines bought at the store by police last month are obscene according to contemporary community standards in Omaha.

Judge Paul Hickman deferred sentencing until next week. The maximum fine would be $1,000 on each count.

Dr. James Pinkney, who identified himself as a counseling psychologist from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, testified magazines like those on trial have educational and therapeutic value.

Pinkney said he sometimes refers counseling clients to adult bookstores to purchase such magazines.

Judge Hickman also levied a $7,000 fine Tuesday on the American Theater Corp. of Omaha, following the firm's conviction on seven counts of distributing obscene materials. A Municipal Court jury last Friday found the firm guilty of selling seven obscene magazines.

Hickman imposed the maximum fine against the corporation, which owns and operates the Pussycat Theater.

City Prosecutor Gary Bucchino says he will try to have the city's two adult movie theaters and the Downtown Books store padlocked under provisions in a new state obscenity law.

Scottsbluff Teen Given Six Months For Beating

Scottsbluff (AP) — A Scottsbluff teen-ager, convicted last month of beating a Scottsbluff high school teacher last fall, has been sentenced to a six-month term in the Scotts Bluff County Jail.

Scotts Bluff County District Court Judge Theodore R. Feidler passed the maximum sentence Tuesday on Angel R. Ybarra, 17.

Last month, Ybarra was found guilty of assaulting Scottsbluff High School Activities Director William Conner.

The incident occured last September, following a high school football game.

Conner was beaten severely with a "chucka" stick, suffered a fracture skull, a broken wrist and bruises.

He spent several weeks in the hospital recuperating from the injuries inflicted by three young men.

Charges against one of the other youths allegedly involved in the beating have been dropped, while charges against the other are still pending in Juvenile Court.

Feidler ordered that Ybarra be given credit for the one month he spent in jail waiting for his trial.

Fremont Man Sought By Police Charged In Robbery In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Police and the FBI were looking Wednesday for a Fremont man charged in connection with the robbery Monday of a Nebraska Savings and Loan Assn. branch office northwest Omaha.

U.S. District Judge Robert Denney issued a warrant Tuesday charging Robert Francis Steele, 37, with one count of bank robbery.

Steele, identifed as the owner of a construction company in Fremont, allegedly jumped from his auto following a chase through North Omaha after the holdup and escaped in a wooded area.

Steele was described as a white man with light brown hair.

Authorities also are looking for a second suspect described as a black man, 5-foot-8 and about 190 pounds, who jumped from the getaway car during a chase.

The holdup netted the robbers $4,000.

Creeks Swollen By Rain Storms

Severe thunderstorms dumping up to five inches of rain early Wednesday left several eastern Nebraska small creeks and streams swollen with some lowland flooding.

The same storm system produced strong winds causing thousands of dollars in damage in the Grand Island area with somewhat less damage in the Seward, Salem, Falls City, Nebraska City, and Auburn areas.

By late Wednesday, water was beginning to back up in the Snyder vicinity along Pebble Creek, the Dodge County sheriff's office reported. Upstream at Dodge, the water was receding after forcing one family to leave their home for a time.

An unofficial five inches of rain was reported north of Dodge with nearly three inches in the Dodge and Snyder vicinities.

3.25 Inches In Southeast

During the night and Wednesday morning near 3.25 inches of rain fell in extreme southeastern Nebraska, causing the National Weather Service to issue a warning that the Little Nemaha River might crest at bankful to two feet above bankful at Auburn. The stream was still within its banks by late Wednesday, the Nemaha County sheriff's office reported and "it looks like it's holding."

The Nemaha River at Falls City was expected to crest at three-quarters bankful.

The storms began moving across central Nebraska late Tuesday night, with Grand Island reporting winds up to 80 miles an hour, and possibly a tornado hit the east edge of the city.

Hall County Sheriff Charles Headley said a tornado struck the Harmony Hall area near Grand Island. "The damage is in the thousands of dollars, and it's going to take quite a bit of cleanup work to get everything back to normal in that area," he said.

The sheriff said there was damage to dwellings, huge cottonwood trees were uprooted or twisted like straw, and homes at a mobile home trailer center were damaged. "The side of one house and the end of the garage were literally torn out," the sheriff told the United Press International.

G.I. Power Disrupted

No one was injured in the Grand Island storm, Headley said, but power was disrupted making it impossible to sound the Civil Defense sirens.

He said the tornado touched down west of Harmony Hall, an abandoned dance hall, crossed Seedling Mile road, which separates Hall County and Merrick County, went across the county line into Merrick County and bounced back and forth several times.

High winds also destroyed a Nebraska Public Power District pole building north of Seward. Just south of the city, a barn was downed, and cattle were pinned under a shed. Southwest of Seward, a grainery and garage were destroyed and a mobile home was overturned.

An unconfirmed twister was reported at the construction site of the Omaha Public Power District's Nebraska City power station, about five miles southeast of Nebraska City.

Officials said three trailers were destroyed and other buildings suffered nearly $40,000 damage.

Strong winds also lashed through the western edge of Auburn, causing minor damage to a number of buildings.

At Falls City tree tops were clipped, and the roof of a barn near Salem was blown off.

In northeast Nebraska, Platte Center received 4.50 inches of rain. Other heavy amounts included: Dodge, 3.80; Duncan 3.75; Rockville 3.30; Osceola 3.04; and Shelton 3.01.

Lincoln's early morning downpours accompanied by a heavy thunderstorm resulted in .71 of an inch of rain at the airport and heavier amounts in other parts of the city.

RETIRED ECONOMIST . . . poses at home.

Dr. Alice Loomis Still Active At 95

"Increasing the length of life is stupid unless we strive to make life worthwhile," says 95-year-old Dr. Alice Loomis.

"Senility is where tuberculosis was 100 years ago. It's a dirty word. People just feel sorry for the senile and put them someplace where they won't be a nuisance."

Dr. Loomis, chairman of the home economics department at the University of Nebraska from 1912 until 1919, has never let age slow her down. Now involved in the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) which provides senior volunteers to 60 Lincoln organizations, she has been working with a 4-H group, the Rolling Stones, teaching knitting.

"But," she says, "they adopted us rather than us adopting them. I enjoy it very much." She plans to continue her work as an RSVP volunteer.

Enjoys People

Even though she uses a walker to get around her apartment at Clark Jeary Memorial Manor in Lincoln, Dr. Loomis says she knits only to relieve her tension, not to pass idle hours. She enjoys being with people.

When she first came back to Nebraska, having been gone 49 years, she worked at the state hospital as a volunteer in mental health.

"I did everything from stuff envelopes to enter security areas and talk with the patients." One man whom she helped is holding a job and visits her several times a year. She has received several recognitions for her work in mental health.

Of the thirteen jobs she has held since graduation from Kansas State University in 1904, only three existed before she held them.

"I'm a pioneer," she says. "When there is a job to be done, I get satisfaction from doing it."

Dr. Loomis has studied nutrition, chemistry, sociology, psychology, physiological chemistry and social behavior. She has also participated in research with juvenile deliquency and the aging process.

Life Doesn't Stop

Feeling that there are great post-retirement possibilities, Dr. Loomis says that life does not stop when one retires. She sees a need for more research in gerontology. She wishes she could do research on senility and explains that growing old doesn't always cause senility.

"One of the most active residents here is two years my senior and she has a very fine mind. Others can't remember their room numbers." Senility would better be described as "decreasing maturity," according to her.

A member of the Baha'i religion, she feels that interdependence is more important now than independence, that one needs to find a place in this fast changing world.

"You know," she says, "I envy young people. There will be so much more to see and do."

State Offices Drenched

Waterproofers were blamed Wednesday for early morning showers which inundated two State Revenue Department offices.

Desks, file cabinets and chairs had to be moved out into the halls of the Statehouse when water which accumulated on the west promenade deck began seeping through to revenue offices.

Waterproofers employed by Western Waterproofing Co. did not take sufficient safeguards to ensure that rain would not get through while they were working, said State Building Administrator Dennis Klawonn.

Klawonn said the leak caused minor damage to ceiling tile, carpet and paint. He said the firm's insurance coverage is being explored.

Youth Center Funds Tripped Up

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The church-state separation question Wednesday tripped up a request for funds to fight juvenile delinquency and drug abuse in the Grand Island area.

The Nebraska Commission on Drugs tabled for one month a request by the Youth Development Center at Kearney to establish a positive peer culture program at Grand Island Central Catholic High School.

Commission members suggested the $31,250 grant would be acceptable if all schools in the area could participate and if specific reference to Grand Island Central Catholic is deleted.

John S. McCarty, superintendent of the Kearney Youth Development Center, said other schools, including Hastings, Kearney and Lexington, were invited to participate but turned the offer down.

G.I. Problem Rising

McCarty said the program is needed because the number of youths being committed to the center, particularly from the Grand Island area, is rising.

The positive peer culture program is based on the assumption that the best way to influence youths is through other youths. Thus, by directing a few natural leaders into positive activities, the program hopes to steer youths away from drug use and encounters with the law.

The program would utilize a full-time consultant and staff members from the Youth Development Centers to train school officials and state parole officers in positive peer techniques.

Youth Development Center records show that in the last fiscal year the number of boys sent there from Hall County more than doubled from 12 to 29. That compares with 55 boys from Douglas County whose population is ten times that of Hall County.

The parole officers would follow through on positive peer techniques now in use at the center to cut down on the recidivism rate. In the last five years, one of every four boys paroled from the center came back for parole violations.

McCarty reported that thus far only one of the 71 boys who have participated in the positive peer program and been paroled has villated his parole. Another has since been sentenced to the Penal Complex.

'Almost Unheard Of'

Such a success rate, McCarty said, is "almost unheard of."

"I'm having fewer problems today with 201 kids than I was a year ago with 125," McCarty said.

Commission member C. Rex Bevins said the special relationship with Central Catholic is illegal. Asst. Atty. Gen. Harold Mosher reportedly told the commission the grant would violate the state constitutional ban on public aid to private schools.

Commission members, however, favored the plan in general terms and agreed to obligate its share of the grant, $18,750, for the project provided the application is rewritten to eliminate the church-state problem.

In other business, the commission:

—Approved a $37,627 grant to Educational Service Unit 3, which includes Sarpy, Dodge and part of Douglas Counties, for an elementary drug education program.

Jeff Kushner, commission director, said the program is designed to promote values among students rather than spending most of the time telling kids about drugs. Some have suggested that the cognitive approach does more to promote drug abuse than prevent it.

—Tabled a $132,500 grant for a residential drug treatment center in Scottsbluff, the first west of Lincoln. The grant will most likely be approved next month, since the commission earmarked $20,000 of its funds for the home.

Commission members were impressed by the fact the Panhandle Community Mental Health Center is willing to pay $92,500 toward the operation of the home.

—Approved a $21,613 grant to the Lincoln Police Department for continuing a program whereby youths who reportedly use drugs are warned of the consequences.

Parole Granted To Man Convicted Of Killing Wife

By United Press International

The Nebraska Parole Board Wednesday granted a parole to an Iowa man who killed his wife in Lincoln 12 years ago and received a life sentence for it.

James E. Lord, 34, of Bondurant, Iowa, was stationed at Lincoln's now defunct Air Force base at the time. He was convicted of second degree murder by the Lancaster County District Court in connection with the stabbing death of his wife, Suzanne, on Feb. 26, 1963.

According to parole board records, Lord maintained during his trial and since that he had no recollection of the incident.

Lord was one of 17 penal complex inmates granted paroles Wednesday.

Also granted a parole was Walter Rollins, 25, of Omaha. He was convicted of manslaughter by the Douglas County District Court in connection with the shooting death of Daune Francl on March 24, 1973.

Rollins was sentenced to four years in prison.

Others granted paroles (listing home of record, crime convicted of, county where convicted, term and date of sentence) included.

Omaha Told To Hike Police Pay

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations ordered Wednesday that the City of Omaha grant an 11% pay increase to city police patrolmen for the year 1975.

The court further ordered an 8% increase in sergeants' salaries, 10% for lieutenants, and 11% for captains.

The court ordered the city to provide a $250 annual clothing allowance for policemen and to pay the full cost of family medical insurance coverage.

Omaha Police Union Local No. 1 took the dispute over wage and conditions to the court, after rejecting a package offer by the city which included a 10.5% pay hike. The union contended that the actual raise offered by the city would have amounted to only 9.5%.

The court said it based its determinations on comparisons of comparable salaries and conditions provided by cities with roughly similar-sized police forces.

The court's order also rebuked the City of Omaha saying that the city "chose as a trial tactic to attack the evidence of the plaintiff and to offer little, if any, evidence of its own.

"Whatever merit this approach may have in an auto-auto property damge case, it has no place in the trial of complex economic issues, and at the close of the evidence, the choice presented to this court was virtually between a 20% or a 22.4% increase in base pay, as evidenced by the plaintiff's witnesses."

However, the court said, it directed the presentation of additional evidence in order to arrive at its orders.

The Omaha Association of Firefighters, dissatisfied with an Industrial Relations Court ruling in its contract dispute with the city, has appealed its case to the State Supreme Court. The high court heard the arguments in the case two weeks ago, but has not yet issued an opinion.

Under the court's decision, a patrolman's top annual salary would go from $11,652 to $12,936; a sergeant's top pay from $12,984 to $14,028; a lieutenant's top pay from $14,100 to $15,516, and a captain's from $15,864 to $17,604.

$900,000 IDA Issue OKd

Omaha (AP) — The Douglas County Board approved a $900,000 Industrial Development Act bond issue Tuesday for Omeco-St. John Co.

The issue will finance the firm's purchase and remodeling of a building and the purchase of new equipment, company attorney David Erickson said.

The firm makes meat-packing equipment.

Klansman To Run

Houston (UPI) — Scott Nelson, imperial wizard of the Texas Fiery Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, announced he will run for mayor this year.

Anderson's Bid Said Low

The M. W. Anderson Construction Co. submitted the apparent low bid to build the Meadowlane swimming pool in east Lincoln Wednesday.

The swimming pool, approved by the City Council last year, will be constructed on Meadowlane Elementary School grounds.

Anderson submitted a bid of $249,766 on the project. The only other bidder was the Weingart Construction Co. of Waverly, which bid $264,000.

The Anderson firm said it will build the pool in 300 working days.

Parks and Recreation Department officials say the pool will be open next summer.

The city purchasing office also took bids for new tennis courts for Seacrest Field in southeast Lincoln.

The Denny Wiekhorst Excavating Co., Inc., of Omaha submitted the apparent low bid of $36,323.

Other bidders included Hank Buis Construction, for $39,832; T & M Construction, for $51,132; George Cook Construction Co., for $57,721; and Walter J. Broer Construction Co., for $65,957.

Bids were also submitted by four contractors to do the remodeling work at Lincoln General Hospital's former nursing dormitory. The city is planning to put a detoxification center, the intake and referral operation and other alcohol-related agencies in the building.

The Walter J. Broer Construction Co. submitted the apparent low bid on the remodeling work and will prepare a more detailed list of costs and work to be done.

The City Council set a ceiling of $100,000 to remodel the building.

Other bidders were Kingery Construction Co., J. King Co. and Sampson Construction Co.

Tokyo (AP) — Japan's steel exports for the year ending March 31 were estimated at $9.1 billion, down 25.3% from a year earlier.

Douglas Hospital Chief Indicted In Embezzling

Omaha (AP) — The Douglas County grand jury Tuesday handed up a 37-count indictment charging Dr. David W. Bean, 39, administrator of Douglas County Hospital, with converting more than $21,600 in public funds to his own use and the use of others.

The indictment alleges that on a number of occasions between July 1972 and last April 30, Dr. Bean violated state laws relating to embezzlement of public funds and conspiracy to commit a felony.

Dr. Bean, administrator of the hospital since May 1971, issued a statement Tuesday denying wrongdoing and expressing confidence that he will be cleared.

The statement said that in four years he and his staff have improved the unsatisfactory conditions at the hospital and have raised it to first-rate status in the community.

"I now find that I am charged with doing wrong," the statement said. "These charges are totally without merit and, in my opinion, are at least mischievous. I am guilty of no wrongdoing and expect full exoneration in the courts of this land."

On June 5, James W. Huston, associate administrator of Douglas County Hospital, was charged in a 27-count indictment with mishandling public funds.

Nebraska Party To Be Started By Libertarians

A Nebraska branch of the National Libertarian Party will be organized in Lincoln June 29.

About 35 persons have expressed interest in attempting to form a state party, according to Dale Bails of Omaha, a state employe and doctorate student in economics at the University of Nebraska.

"We'd be pro-marijuana, pro-prostitution, pro-gambling and pro-voluntary taxation, meaning give only as much to the government as you feel you want to give," Bails said.

"The gist of the party's beliefs is that it is an individual decision and government should stay out of these fields."

The party has about 6,000 members nationally and was on the presidential ballot in 15 states in 1972, Bails said.

Its national director, Bob Meier, will be the main speaker at the organizational meeting at the Lincoln Hilton Hotel June 29.

Will Faculty Pay to Park?

Omaha (AP) — Faculty and staff members at the University of Nebraska at Omaha will pay to park for the first time this fall if the Board of Regents approves a recommendation from Chancellor Ronald Roskens Saturday.

Roskens will propose a $12-a-year fee for the two groups, the same paid by students to park on campus.

UNO administrators have been discussing the fee proposal with faculty and staff members for a year.

7-Acre Japanese Farm Needs Nebraska Corn

By Gene Kelly

Tonzawa Mountain — Y. Takanashi, 64, pauses in the doorway of the barn during the warm, mid-afternoon rain to retie the hemp cord that serves as a belt.

The cobweb-festooned fluorescent lights in the steel-girdered barn play tricks with his eyes, as the mists swirl about the Holsteins in their steel-barred pens.

Takanshi is certainly not one for appearances. He's just your average Japanese farmer, one who doesn't care about impressing his neighbors.

What he does care about is the Nebraska corn that is so vital to his dairy beef operation. For these are corn-fed cattle, very much dependent on feed grain imports. Dairy beef provides 60% of the beef raised in Japan.

Takanashi's farm, perched on a flat spot which runs to the edge of a brownish-green stream that races along over white rocks, has a disturbing quality about it.

Top of World

On the one hand, it's a farm at the top of the world. A bolt of lightning, seen from here, is mind-boggling as it dances among the peaks. Yet a reassuring closeness pervades on this, some of the most expensive farm land in the world.

Deep olive hillsides hang high and glowering over the acreage, like undulating rows of John L. Lewis eyebrows. Strips of clouds grip tenaciously at a ragged ridgeline to the north, fearing they will be metamorphosed into tomorrow's thundershower.

On the other hand, the one-acre farm is almost a classic example of concentrated agriculture — getting the most return from every inch. It might even be called intensive care farming.

But Takanashi's farm is not isolated. It's narrow lane becomes a narrow road which drops, and drops, a twisting, turning line of asphalt which leads south to the village of Hiratsuka. By Japanese standards, its 100,000 or so population make it only a village.

Less Than Acre

With less than an acre to till, Takanashi has got to be a small farmer. Well almost.

Y. Takanashi

He expects to net about $40,000 this year.

Last year he came out about even on his dairy beef confinement operation, pincered between soaring feed grain costs and drooping market prices for the cattle.

The price of formulated feed went up 60% during 1974 when imported feed grains became much more costly.

And the Tokyo wholesale market price of dairy beef dropped sharply between October 1973 (when it was about $1.33 a pound) and June 1974 (when it dropped to 90¢).

The price is now back up to 1973 levels, a fact which the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry says is due to its policies of limiting beef imports, and newly-adopted feed grain and beef market price controls.

Four Times

When the beef finally reaches the consumer, the price will be about four times what an American family would pay for the same cut.

Takanashi hopes price controls will prevent another bad year.

He also hopes that the Nebraska farmer gets his summer rains (he was aware of last year's drouth), and that there will again be surplus feed grains to export.

"We need your corn and fields of waving grain," he says simply.

In the U.S., his feeder operation would be considered small stuff. But in Japan, Takanashi's 80 head of cattle make him 10 times larger than most farmers. "The U.S. is not the world," he reminds you.

Do you measure a farmer's success by his net income, his return on investment, the dollars that flow through his operation, or his life style after taxes?

Realistically any of these measures can lead you down the tea garden path, if inflation is rampant, or if profits vaporize when cost pressures meet faltering market prices.

Wild Grasses

In contrast to the neat vegetable rows around the barn, small bundles of wild grasses, hand-cut, are scattered at Takanashi's feet, a tasty appetizer for his cattle. More dried bundles are stacked in the corner, like primitive, miniature bales of hay.

In a small room near the barn door slices of bread, much of it sweet with raisins and dates, cover the floor. These too the cattle will eat. And a little rice straw.

Takanashi has resorted to some unique feed sources to supplement and maintain a high-protein diet for them.

Fifty-gallon barrels are lined up outside, to be refilled next week with curd left over from a tofu (soybean custard) manufacturing plant in the village.

Bags of pelleted alfalfa feed, imported from California, sprawl along one wall inside the barn.

But the major ration in Takanashi's dairy beef program is 95% corn and 5% fishmeal.

The corn, he speculates, is shipped from the Great Plains, perhaps much of it from Nebraska. There is no way to really know.

Much Too Slowly

Takanashi does know that

Japan
Nebraska's Trade Ally

without American grain his feeding operation would not be as profitable. The calves would gain much too slowly on low-protein feed sources, he says.

"We need your corn," he says. "Can you assure us it will be available?"

The land on this plateau, despite its volcanic, alkaline appearance, doesn't come cheap. At $18,000 an acre, however, it's a bargain compared with land farther down the valley. Three rice and vegetable crops a year make land there sell for as much as $28,000 an acre.

Although these are prime prices for prime farm land, the price of rice paddy land averages more than $6,000 an acre in Japan. Other farm land, much of it mountainous, averages $3,000.

A Taskmaster

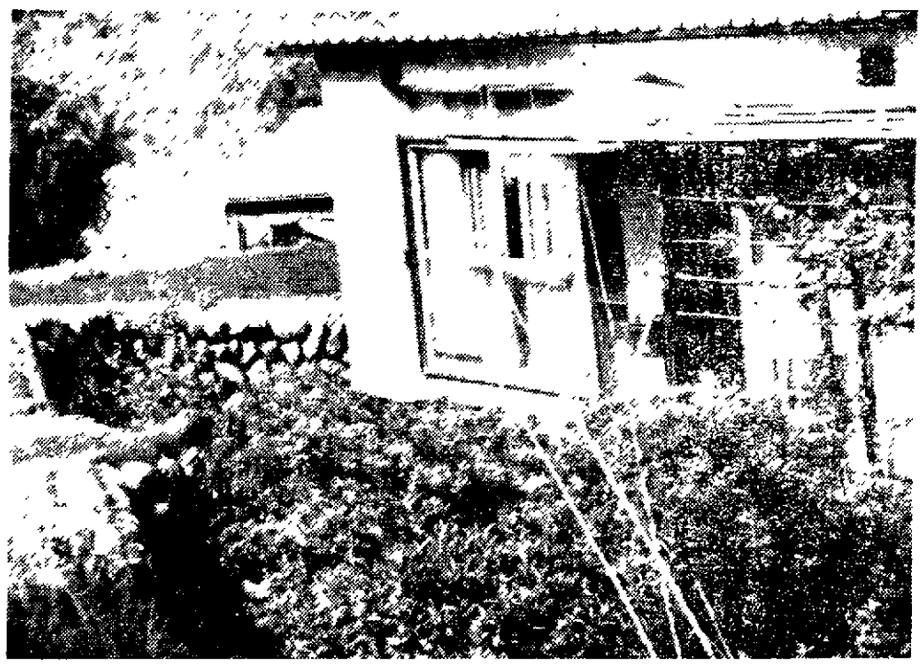
The land is a good investment, and a taskmaster, says Takanashi: "It keeps me from getting old."

Also, he notes, those who have land could do worse than acquire more.

A list of new millionaires is published each spring by a Tokyo newspaper. Not too many years back it was headed by industrialists and trading company heirs.

Last year, most of those on the list, Takanashi says, had merely sold the family farm. And the farms weren't all that big.

STEEP HILLSIDES . . . planted and harvested west of Tokyo.



TAKANASHI HOME . . . has miniature front yard.

Tonsillectomies Said Unnecessary

Atlantic City, N.J. (UPI) — One million children have their tonsils removed annually in the United States but a Pennsylvania pediatrician said Tuesday most of those operations may be unnecessary or even harmful.

Dr. Jack L. Paradise, director of the ambulatory care center at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh, said authorities disagree considerably on when a tonsillectomy is necessary. He said this leads to confusion on the part of family doctors who tend to recommend for or against the operation on the basis of their teaching, experience and opinions.

"Most of the operations may be unnecessary or actually harmful, but even thoughtful and conscientious physicians maintain differing attitudes and practices on the matter," Paradise said in a report prepared for a symposium at the annual meeting of the American Medical Association.

He said Children's Hospital is now carrying out a study of tonsillectomy and adnoidectomy to determine the effects of such operations.

Dr. Peter L. Hurst, pediatrician at the Kaiser-Permanente Center, Portland, Ore., said in another paper that the tonsillectomy and adnoidectomy issue is complicated but deserves to be answered because of the large numbers of operations that are performed.

Chauffeur Kills Mali Diplomat, Then Himself

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Mali's ambassador to Belgium and the European Common Market, Alioune Sissoko, was shot and killed Wednesday by his chauffeur who then killed himself, the embassy said.

Police sources said it was not a political murder and that the chauffeur had acted for "private reasons," which police did not specify.

Ambassador Sissoko played a prominent role in last year's trade and aid agreement between the Common Market and African, Caribbean and Pacific countries. European sources said he was one of the best informed diplomats on African-EEC relations.

Police confirmed the embassy report that the chauffeur, Kalifa Keita, 23, killed the ambassador in his office with a hunting rifle and then shot himself in the stomach. Keita, who was married and had two children, died later in an hospital.

Jog The Blues Away

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

Some say it relieves anxiety. Others claim it gives them a psychological "high." Others simply cite the physiological benefits.

On one thing they all agree: You can get hooked. Hooked on jogging.

Ever since jogging mania huffed and puffed its way into the national consciousness several years ago, its list of practitioners has grown.

And spokespersons for local sporting goods stores report that jogging apparel sales are at an all-time high.

"Very, very good," said Gerry Rosenberger, owner of Gerry's Sport and Ski Shop, of his jogging togs sales.

Most Are Men

Chuck Duchek of Kep Harding's Sports Shop noted that more and more women are buying jogging apparel — although he added that the majority of the shoppers are "older" (i.e., middle-aged and older) men.

Even for the person who takes his/her appearance seriously, jogging is not a terribly expensive pastime, equipment-wise. Warm-up suits (a jacket and pants, generally made of stretch nylon or double knit) cost anywhere from $11 to $35 or $40. And Rosenberger said they're selling like hotcakes.

Less fashion-conscious joggers may prefer shorts and T-shirts, sweat suits, or whatever they can dig up around the house.

A spokesperson for Lawlor's reported that rubberized suits — billed as weight-reducing aids — are popular with some joggers.

Running shoes (not to be confused with tennis shoes) come in a variety of styles which range in price from about $14 to $30, and which are made of leather and/or nylon.

Most joggers are looking for a shoe "that will hold up well and that has a good arch support," Duchek said.

TRY JOGGING . . . as these members of the Larry Fuerst family are doing.

Family Affair

Rosenberger said that people of every age and description are buying jogging apparel. And, in some cases, jogging has become a real "family affair," with dad, mom and the kids all taking part.

Such is the case with the Larry Fuerst family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuerst and their two daughters, aged 8 and 10, all run "on a regular schedule — usually after work," Fuerst said.

At 40, Fuerst is no newcomer to the running scene. A track competitor while at Midland College, he is now chairman of the Nebraska branch of the Masters Program — a nationwide program devoted to establishing track and field competition for adults.

"For me, it (running) is just a way of life," said Fuerst, a sales representative for IBM. "I run off anxieties. I feel like I'm doing something maybe others aren't."

Feels Sharper

And Fuerst added that he believes that that "something" — running — gives him a "competitive edge" in the business world. He said he feels better, sharper as a result of his running.

Mrs. Fuerst began jogging two summers ago, according to her husband, after she had read the book "Aerobics For Women." The two Fuerst daughters, in addition to running with their parents, are actively involved in competitive track.

Usually the family uses the tracks at Pius X High School or Lincoln East High School for their evening jogs, Fuerst said.

There's no doubt that the roll-call of running enthusiasts is "growing all the time," said Dr. Jim Crabbe, assistant professor of physical education and recreation at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Last semester, Dr. Crabbe taught the university's first course in aerobic exercise, and a similar class is being offered this summer.

Endurance Activity

Explaining that aerobic literally means "with oxygen," Dr. Crabbe said that an aerobic exercise is an "endurance type activity . . . done over an extended period of time" (distance running as opposed to the 50-yard dash).

The "major benefit of aerobic exercise is that it improves the cardiovascular - pulmonary system," Dr. Crabbe said.

Among the "associated benefits" he cited were the "psychological therapy" it can provide, and the potential it offers for weight loss and/or maintenance.

"In the majority of cases, people do lose weight if they start an aerobics program and stay with it," Dr. Crabbe said. One student who took the aerobics class lost 23 pounds in one sememster, simply by exercising more and maintaining his food intake level, he continued.

Of course, "you can't take in three times as much food" and expect to lose weight just because you're running.

Dr. Crabbe, who prefers to run "in the country on gravel roads" rather than on a track, said that many people — professors and students especially — use the university track during the noon hour.

Skip Lunch

Some make it a point to run instead of eating lunch, he said.

As far as precautions are concerned, Dr. Crabbe said that anyone who has "ever had any hereditary problems with heart disease, is overweight, or has suspected cardiovascular problems" should consult a physician before embarking on a running program.

For those who are starting such a program, Dr. Crabbe's main words of advice were "go slowly."

"Most people who hear about jogging . . . go out and overdo it" the first time or two, he said. "And then they don't stay with it.

"The key is to start at a very slow pace, so that when you get done, you feel that you have something left."

At the outset, the person who has not been exercising regularly will be much better off if he or she runs only every other day, Dr. Crabbe said.

"Some people may want to start with nothing but walking," he continued. Then jogging can be introduced gradually.

The duration of the exercise, the pace, etc. "depend on the individual," Dr. Crabbe said. However, everone would do well to remember that aerobics is "not one of those get-rich-quick programs."

Crippled Lawyers Open Office

Pittsburgh (UPI) — Karns, Corbett and Kissane is not an ordinary law firm.

There are no towering bookcases, no chairs behind the desks. Instead of the sound of scurrying footsteps, the office's silence is interrupted by the occassional hum of a battery-operated wheelchair.

Jack Karns, John Corbett and Dennis Kissane were injured as teen-agers in accidents which left them paralyzed from the waist down and confined to wheelchairs. The three met while undergraduates at the University of Pittsburgh and went on to graduate from Pitt's law school.

Last year they opened Karns, Corbett and Kissane, and hired Marti Pegnetter, also confined to a wheelchair, as their legal secretary.

"We don't see anything melodramatic in this, anything extraordinary. It's all a matter of living," Corbett said. Although their achievement conjures up images of mental determination and extreme self-discipline, they deny it involved anything more than hard work.

"We look at our handicap as an inconvenience. Given more time and more effort we can accomplish the same as anyone else." Kissane said

Business, as with most beginning law firms, is slow. Corbett estimates it will take five years to become established.

"It's all very simple. You have to answer just one question — whether you want to continue living After that there's no looking back," Corbett said.

She Put An End To Husband's Shadowboxing

DEAR ABBY: I must make a comment about the woman whose husband tickles her until she is hysterical, even though she begs him to stop.

I had a husband like that.

He used to shadowbox around me, occasionally landing a genuinely painful blow here and there. He would dance around, prizefighter-style, saying, "Let's mix it up a little." He would pretend it was all in fun, but I knew he was sadistic when I begged him to stop and he wouldn't. I even told him that if he'd quit that little shadowboxing game for good, I would accept it as my Christmas present. Even that didn't work.

Then I casually asked a friend of mine in the presence of her husband and mine if her husband ever played such games. Of course he hadn't. And then a knowing look passed between the two of them.

He never played that game again.

A psychiatrist later told me that when I exposed his cruelty to our friends, he saw himself as others saw him, and he stopped voluntarily.

So maybe this poor "tickled" woman should try the same approach.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: It's worth a try. Isn't it a shame that some people are more concerned about how they appear to strangers than how their own families view them?

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a grown son and his mother who kiss each other on the mouth? My boyfriend is 27, and you should see the way he and his mother kiss! Every hello and goodby is like a love scene in the movies.

The first time I noticed it was last New Year's Eve. They embraced like a pair of lovers, and they held a kiss for what seemed like five minutes without coming up for air. I was so angry I didn't even feel like kissing him after that.

It looks like his mother loves him the way I do. Could I be mistaken? Or could I be overracting because I love him?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: It depends. You don't say whether your boyfriend is the KISSER or the KISSEE. If he's the kisser, he may have a problem.

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife, who had been married 10 years and have four children, got a divorce by mutual agreement.

The wife remarried a month later, and my brother got married in two months. Both married divorced persons.

My mother has seven children and 33 grandchildren, and nothing like this has ever happened in her family. She is heartbroken. Now that they both have remarried she does not want to meet the new spouses. She says that it may be legal as far as the state goes, but not with her!

She still considers her first daughter-in-law her son's only wife — divorce or no divorce. And she wants the first wife to visit as always with her children, but without her new husband. She says she won't have her son and his new wife sleeping together in her house (they all live out of state) and the same goes for the first daughter-in-law and her husband.

In other words, she doesn't recognize their divorce and remarriage. "Visit me," she says, "but do your sleeping with your new spouses elsewhere."

What do you say, Abby?

SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Your mother has a right to her own opinions, but whether she wants to recognize the second marriages or not, they are still valid, according to civil law.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — king of spades

Some of the inferences a defender can draw are indeed startling, especially when they can be put to good use.

Consider this deal where West led the king of spades, East playing the deuce, and shifted to the king of hearts at trick two! Declarer could n't recover from this blow. He won the heart with the ace and led the ace and another club. West took the king, played a heart to East's queen, and back came a spade to put the contract down one.

It was scintillating defense, all right, but West's king of hearts play was much more than just a shot in the dark. West knew from the bidding that it was impossible for East to have an ace if South had a 16 to 18 point notrump.

He therefore set his sights quite a bit lower by assuming that East had the queen of hearts, a card that East might easily hold and without which it was next to impossible for the contract to be defeated.

In true storybook fashion, East had the decency to have the queen of hearts and so South was knocked out of the box by West's unusual play at trick two.

Note that if West had played a low heart at trick two, South would have made nine tricks instead of six. Note also that if declarer had ducked the king of hearts he would likewise have failed in his mission. West would continue with a heart, East following low, and once again declarer would be unable to garner more than six tricks.

Good card reading pays good dividends, and in the present case West's familiarity with point count enabled him to make an exotic but nonetheless highly effective play.

Publishing Rule Challenge Likely

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A matter of private profit, or the public's right to know?

A number of Nebraska cities, inclined to question the motivation behind a legislative bill expanding the legal publication requirements for municipalities, are preparing to challenge the new law in the courts.

"I'd say the probabilities that they will go to court are better than 50%," Dave Chambers, executive vice president of the League of Nebraska Municipalities, said Wednesday.

The league itself would not be a party to the lawsuit, but it probably would coordinate the efforts of "a number of towns which would go together to challenge the law" in the courts, Chambers said.

Enacted by the 1975 Legislature as LB193, the law expands the requirements for cities of not more than 40,000 to publish their official proceedings in local newspapers by adding publication of claims and annual publication of a list of city employes and their salaries, with quarterly revisions.

The proposal was promoted by the Nebraska Press Association.

Some cities question whether the association was more interested in additional newspaper revenue than in expanding the public's right to know, Chambers acknowledged.

"They noticed that it was carried to the Legislature by the Nebraska Press Association and not by the general public," he said.

City objections to increased costs are also buttressed by what they consider to be a discriminatory requirement imposed on all Nebraska municipalities except Omaha and Lincoln.

On the latter objection would rest the court case.

"The challenge would be whether the 40,000 population designation is arbitrary and capricious," Chambers said.

No such publication requirements are imposed on the Cities of Lincoln and Omaha, he said.

"Some cities are stung by that difference," Chambers said. "Why the difference?"

The bill was reluctantly signed into law by Gov. J. James Exon after, he said, he received assurances from the NPA that it would cooperate in a statewide effort to standardize abbreviations and otherwise hold down publication costs.

Similar publication requirements already exist for school districts and county governments.

Fremont city officials have publicly criticized LB193 as a bill to "fatten the tax take of newspapers throughout the state."

The added cost to Fremont was estimated at $4,000 a year.

George Miller, chairman of the NPA legislative committee, has branded that estimate as "far too high" and "highly inflated."

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, sponsor of the bill, said it is designed to improve "the public's right to know."

NRD Board OKs Talks With NPD

The board of directors of the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District (NRD) Wednesday night authorized contract negotiations with the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) for the Oak Creek channel realignment project.

In approving the negotiations, the board set a $30,000 limit on NRD contributions to the project.

The board also authorized the NRD to hire consultants for a study of the Oak Creek realignment project. A $2,000 limit was set for the study. Board members said the study will help them in future decisions about the project.

In other action, the board unanimously approved a $15,654.53 payment as its share of construction costs for a storm sewer discharging into Salt Creek. The City of Lincoln and Lancaster County will pay the remaining costs of the $55,000 project.

NRD General Manager Hal Schroeder said the estimated cost of the project in 1973 was $35,000 with the NRD to pay no more than $10,000.

Teens Charged In Beating Girl

Three Lincoln teenagers have been charged in juvenile court with assault with intent to do great bodily injury in connection with a Tuesday night incident where an 18-year-old woman was beaten and stripped.

The young woman was beaten, kicked and had her clothing ripped off by a group of teenagers in the incident near 23rd and Vine, according to police reports.

Police responded to a call that a fight was taking place near 23rd and Vine. When police arrived the young woman, crying for help, ran toward the police car, while the teenagers fled.

The woman who was assaulted, who is white, told police that she was standing on the corner of 23rd and Vine when a group of black girls congregated on the steps of a nearby house asked her about some young black men she had been dating.

When the woman left, a group of black teenagers followed her and one girl pulled her from the street and began punching her while others held her arms, according to police reports.

Just as police arrived, one boy picked up a stick and announced his intentions to assault her with it, according to the police reports.

The woman was treated and released from Lincoln General Hospital.

Though about a dozen teenagers were at the scene during the assault, police believe that only three were involved in the beating.

The three arrested are a 15-year-old girl and 15- and 16-year-old boys.

P.J. Morgan Okays Citizens Committee

By The Associated Press

A committee formed to support P.J. Morgan for the Republican nomination for the 2nd District Congressional seat filed an organizational report Wednesday with the secretary of state.

Morgan is a former state senator and a current member of the Douglas County Board.

The treasurer of his campaign committee is Mark T. Staff.

The committee is called "Citizens for P.J. Morgan."

The incumbent, Rep. John Y. McCollister, has announced plans to run for the U.S. Senate seat of Roman Hruska, who is retiring.

Contacted by phone at his Omaha office, Morgan said he personally gave permission to go ahead with the forming of the comittee and filing of papers.

However, Morgan said he is not planning to make a formal announcement of his candidacy until next fall.

There is a lot of work and planning that has to go into a campaign if you want to be successful, Morgan said.

Asked who he felt might be his toughest opponent for the nomination, Morgan said, "I don't know, but I'm sure there will be plenty."

He predicted that as many as six persons may try for the GOP nomination.

Others who have been named as possible GOP candidates include Omaha City Councilman Monte Taylor, and City Council President Robert Cunningham.

Recently however, Cunningham has given indication that he is thinking about getting out of politics altogether.

Aerial Survey By Cengas Show Insulation Needed

An aerial survey by Cengas shows that many state and University of Nebraska buildings are poorly insulated and allowing thousands of dollars of heat to escape.

Cengas charted the heat given off from Lincoln buildings through the aerial survey. They survey showed a tremendous heat loss from the state capitol, governor's mansion and most buildings on the university campus, said Clancy Woolman of Cengas.

Woolman said the survey gave university officials the tools they needed to show that some of their buildings need more insulation.

He said he had been talking to university officials and "They have been very energy minded all along."

He said a state official was in his office checking on the state's buildings.

Several downtown buildings also showed great heat loss, Wollman said.

He said at least 20,000 Lincoln homes need more insulation. He added that the average Lincoln home could save $73 a year in heat costs if it had adequate insulation. He had no estimate of the amount of money the state could save.

Extension Officers Elected

York — Mrs. Harvey Rohe of Clatonia and Mrs. Bill Sommer of Mitchell were elected to offices in the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs during the group's annual meeting here.

Mrs. Rohe was elected vice president and Mrs. Sommer, historian.

Officers of the council are chosen on a staggered basis. Mrs. A. T. Crumly of Page is currently president of the state organization. She will relinquish her position later this year to current president-elect Mrs. Vic Auble of Arnold.

Homemakers attending the annual conference also elected several district directors to serve during the coming year. They include: Mrs. Virgil Nelson, Curtis; Mrs. Darrel Henke, Unadilla; Mrs. Robert Elliott, Hartington; and Mrs. Wayne Miller of Ord.

Meanwhile, the council announced the two scholarship winners for this year.

Receiving $300 grants from the council were Pamela Warholoski, David City, and Kathy Ann McGhee, Lincoln. Both girls are home economics majors at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Pam is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Warholoski. Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chapman of Allen.

Female NCO Recruits Men

Concord, Calif. (AP) — All right, men. Janice Cossey wants you — to join the new Army.

Sgt. Cossey, 26, is one of the first female recruiters in the Army. "They expect some big, burly guy just back from Vietnam, and instead here's this sort of quiet little girl," says Sgt. Cossey, a high school dropout from Madera, Calif., who trained in Alabama.

"Men seem very pleased to talk to a woman and see women in the service they can elate to. Men are very anxious to talk to a girl."

Sgt. Cossey has been a recruiter for three years. She worked in South Carolina until April when she was sent to Concord to help initiate a new program of women recruiting men as well as women.

Since she started here, Sgt. Cossey has recruited five men. Asked if feminine charm is a recruiting asset, she said, "I hope it helps."

Officials Stunned; LES Asks More Rate Hikes

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City officials appeared slightly stunned at the news

Electric rates are going to have to go up 20 to 22% by January to keep the lights on Lincoln in the 1980's

Lincoln Electric System (LES) Board members told the City Council and mayor that a 10 to 12% rate hike will be needed around Aug. 1, followed by a similar rate hike Jan 1

The proposed rate boosts will help pay skyrocketing power costs and help finance a multi-million dollar capital construction program needed to meet growing electrical demands, Board Chairman Tom Allman said

Council members asked for a report on why electric demand is increasing, who's using the increased power and how much

Information Helpful

Councilman Bob Jeambey said that information would help the lawmakers determine whether the rate increases should be made across the board or heaped on the customers who will be eating up the power The council approves all rate hikes.

LES Administrator Walt Canney said customers are charged on a cost-of-service basis, based on a complete rate structure revamping made last year

In a special meeting with the elected officials, LES Board members explained why the rate hikes are needed, even though energy conservation efforts are being stressed

LES has secured enough power to keep the air conditioners running until 1978-79 After that, Allman said, "The power must come from someplace and we don't have that someplace "

The city can get that electricity from three main areas — buying all power from the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD), building its own generating units or joining with other utilities in building such units

LES won't be buying all the electricity from NPPD because, Allman said, it'll be cheaper for LES to be its own power supplier.

Sharing Favored

Board members favor the third alternative of joining in with other utilities to build plants. That way LES shares the cost and the responsibility.

To meet the electrical demand after 1978, LES is considering· — Buying power from the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) Nebraska City plant, which should cover needs until 1979

— Participating in the construction of a coal-fired plant in Wyoming as part of the Missouri Basin Power Project, which should cover needs until 1983

— Purchasing power from OPPD's second nuclear plant at Ft. Calhoun, which should cover needs until the mid-1980's.

After that Allman said LES is considering buying electricity from NPPD's hydro-electric plant in northeast Nebraska or from NPPD's second generating unit at Gerald Gentleman Station near Sutherland

Lincoln also is looking at building its own generating plant, possibly using solid waste as one source of fuel

LES has two key planning decisions facing it this summer

July, August Decisions

By July 1 the city must give a go or no-go on participating in OPPD's Ft Calhoun plant But Aug 1 the city must decide whether to join with five other utilities in bulding the Wyoming plant

If the city agrees to become a part-owner in that generating complex and in OPPD's plant, LES is going to have to help pay the construction bill.

That means, board member Burnham Yates said, LES will have to sell about $250 million in revenue bonds to help finance the city's share of the plant's construction

In order to sell those revenue bonds, Yates and board member Vincent Goeres, stressed the need for LES to maintain a strong financial image in the New York City bond market Those rate hikes will help do that job, the two investment bankers said

Sound Financial Health

In addition to covering increased costs in general, the additional revenues will demonstrate that LES is in sound financial health and entice investors to buy the bonds Eventually, Lincolnites will be charged lower interest rates.

Yates said the size of the bond issues hasn't been determined, but guessed that a $50 million issue would have to be floated every few years. The bonds would be paid off from revenues generated by the system

City Finance Director Jim Mallon concurred with the LES financial plan explained by Yates and Goeres.

The LES Board is scheduled to discuss those proposed rate increases and budgetary items at its monthly meeting Friday.

Lincoln Market Opening Scheduled For June 28

The Lincoln Center Farmer's Market will open its doors for business on Saturday, June 28th

Due to some misinformation, it was originally reported that the market would start this Saturday

The market will give farmers, backyard gardeners and crafts makers a chance to sell their goods on Saturdays this summer The produce will be sold on 12th St. between N and O

Promotional bus rides will not be given away on June 28th, as originally announced by the Downtown Lincoln Promotion Council (DLPC).DLPC spokesman Lanny Jorgenson said plans have been changed on the bus promotion and that the rides will be offered in mid-July It will be on that July Saturday that the grand kick-off for the market will be held.

The market should run on Saturdays through Sept 6

Planners Thought In Favor Of St. Elizabeth Building

City-County planners indicated Wednesday they would approve St Elizabeth Community Health Center s request to change the location of two proposed medical office buildings.

The planning commission will take action next week on the hospital's plans to construct two buildings, housing 18 physicians each

Each building would be three stories high and contain 30 500-square feet. A tunnel would connect the private office buildings to the hospital

Planning Director Doug Brogden has approved the relocation of one of the buildings The planning commission actually is reviewing the relocation of the second office building The buildings would be in the same general area as originally planned by hospital officials several years ago The area is on the west side of 70th south of L St by the pond

Brogden is recommending approval of the change but suggested that the hospital solve parking lot problems by encouraging workers to take the bus to work

Brogden said, "All I ve asked them to do is try it I don't say they have to do it

The commission also held a hearing on Russell Raybould's application for an adjustment to the front yard at the B&R IGA store at 18th and Washington Raybould wants to provide additional off-street parking places for customers and said he would landscape the area

Representatives of the Near-South Neighborhood Association opposed the request on the grounds that expansion of the parking lot would be out of character with the surrounding residential neighborhood

Laundromat Opposed

Several property owners around 33rd and Merrill also objected to a proposed change of zone requested by Fred Wenske. The applicant wants to operate a laundromat in the area and has requested K Light industry zoning Laundromats are allowed in the more restrictive G-1 Planned Commercial zoning district The land is now zoned residential

A hearing also was held on Darlene Pedersen s request to rezone 4 4 acres of land to business use on S Coddington Ave., 800 feet south of W. Van Dorn Brogden is recommending denial of that application

The architect designing a two-story elementary school for the Lincoln Christian School got some good news from the planners. John Thiessen was told that the school doesn't need a special permit to build the school

Curriculum Certified

Brogden said a permit isn't needed if the school could show that its curriculum is substantially similar to that of the Lincoln Public Schools Thiessen said the curriculum is certified by the school district

The commission is slated to take action on those requests next Wednesday

In other business the commission

Life Begins At Forty:

Burglar-Proofing Measures Outlined

By JOANNE FARRIS

Now that vacation time is coming around again, it's a good idea to check your house and yard to be sure you are not inviting burglars either while you're home or when you leave for a few days.

Among the most obvious common sense protective measures are these:

Stop newspaper or milk deliveries to your house for the entire time that you will be gone.

Ask a neighbor to take in your mail.

Hire someone to keep your grass cut. It's a very good idea to walk around your house from time to time checking the shrubbery. Dense shrubbery close to a house is a good hiding place for a prowler.

Public safety officers recommend that you keep shrubbery trimmed down to fence level so that your neighbor can see over the bushes and observe what's going on at your house when you are gone.

Over and over we read that professional burglars concede that the best protection a vacant house can have is a suspicious neighbor, who will call police when anything out of the ordinary is observed.

Whether you are going away for an evening or a long stay, it makes good sense to leave on an outside light. Furthermore, one or two interior lights on timers which will turn them on and then off at pre-set hours can deter burglars. These timers are inexpensive and can be purchased at hardware, drug, and variety stores.

Police officers believe that most burglars look for houses that are easy to get into. If you have jalousie windows which are easily removed from the outside, install galvanized protective screening or good-looking and strong wrought-iron window bars.

Sliding glass doors can be burglar-proofed with pipes or broom handles laid full length in the door tracks. Or, you can have holes drilled through the frame and door through which a steel pin can be inserted when the doors are locked.

Exterior wooden doors should be solid; hollow-core plywood doors are easy to break through. All exterior doors should be hinged from inside. If you have exterior hinges they should be spot-welded so that they cannot be pulled out and the door removed.

Locks on exterior doors should be tamper-proof. Do not believe that you are safe behind a thumb turn lock with the little press button on the inside handle; this type of lock is unsuitable for any exterior door, including shed, playhouse, or garage. For outbuildings galvanized steel padlocks are excellent.

Public safety departments all around the country have electric engraving pencils, which they will lend you so that you can mark all your household valuables. These tools, which you can usually borrow for 48 hours, mark metal, wood, and plastic.

Use your driver's license number as the identifier; numbering your possessions discourages burglars and aids police in identifying the owner of stolen items they recover.

If, by some stroke of bad luck, you arrive home from a trip and find a burglary in progress at your house, go to a neighbor's house where you can call the police. Then try and get the license number of any vehicle being used in the crime. Don't be a hero; just stay calm, be observant, and wait for experienced help.

'Valentino' Will Appear Next Season

Los Angeles (AP) — Spelling-Goldberg Productions is planning its most ambitious television feature, "Valentino," based on the life of the silent screen star.

The company's 56th TV feature, "Valentino," will appear on ABC next season. A nationwide talent search has been launched to find an actor for the title role.

The winner may have reason for pause. Anthony Dexter starred in the movie "Valentino" in 1951 and his career never quite recovered.

NBC-TV Plans Repeat Airing

Los Angeles(AP) — NBC-TV has scheduled a repeat airing June 24 of the February World Premiere movie, "The Secret Night Caller," with Robert Reed starring as a maker of obscene phone calls.

The network quotes the Bell Telephone System report that subscribers file 50,000 complaints of obscene calls each year.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — On a chilly morning in England, I rented a cabin crusier with four bunks and a refrigerator full of Henley's Strong Ale and started up the Thames.

On one side I could see Eton college and the playing fields where England's wars are won. The Eton boys, who fill the afternoon tea shops with their top hats and Eton jackets, were not in sight. Too early maybe.

We floated with the swans on a river of history.

The school was founded in 1441 by King Henry VI. He ordered that it be staffed by "ten sad priests, four lay clerks, six choristers, twenty-five grammar scholars, and twenty-five poor men to pray for the King."

A package tour to Heaven, tips included.

Dispatches in the paper this morning from faraway Windsor where the gray castle stands above the Thames. Eton boys have taken to blue jeans.

("Thou hast most traitorously corrupted the youth of the realm in erecting a grammar school," wrote Will Shakespeare in King Henry VI.)

On sunny afternoons it was a splendid sight to see the top hats bobbing up and down the antique streets.

As all England knows, blue jeans are an American export. So it's likely we're being blamed for the new look at Eton.

"Sometimes hath the brightest day a cloud." That's Shakespeare too on good King Henry.)

The price of blue jeans is up — we paid $15 for the last set of Levi's.

A friend back from Russia says: "Blue jeans are like gold in Moscow. They try to buy them right off of you."

In Hong Kong, slim and trim Chinese girls have put off the slit skirt cheongsam. Put on jeans.

Jeans are on the streets of Tokyo and in banana towns of Central America.

Around here they've been gussied up with patches of embroidered butterflies and sun-reflecting sequins.

Blue jeans began in the gold fields of California when Mr. Levi himself began cutting miners' pants out of denim.

They graduated into resort wear out where the West begins. Chicks making the horsey scene around Phoenix discovered they could shrink jeans to their measurements.

On the streets of Scottsdale you could read the numbers of a $5 bill in their pistol pockets.

A local cleaners got rich taking blue jeans and fading them to a becoming age.

Now we have pre-faded jeans. Jeans cut into raggedy shorts. We even have used blue jeans at new jeans prices.

About the fanciest present you can give a girl today is blue jeans once worn by prisoners at San Quentin. Discarded as too worn. Which is practically worn out.

☆ ☆ ☆

Some years ago I bought some jeans in Phoenix. I bought them to ride horses like an idiot. Horses you rent at fashionable Camelback are members of a union.

Anyway, I bought the jeans. "They'll last a lifetime," said the salesman. "You can't wear them out."

I couldn't wear them out. But the rent horse could. He pulled me along a half mile of cactus. And since I never could pick the spines out of the pants, I threw them away. Easy come, easy go.

Bell Accepts Debenture Issue Bids

Omaha (AP) — Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. has accepted bids on purchase of a $150 million, 37-year debenture issue that will cost the company 8.72% interest.

The successful bidders will pay a discount rate for the debentures, then sell them to the public with an 8.65% yield. The discount and interest will cost Northwestern Bell 8.72%.

Northwestern Bell went to the debt market in August 1974, when it sold $150 million worth of 40-year debentures carrying an interest cost to the company of 10.14%.

Successful bidders in the latest issue were represented by Morgan Stanley and Co. Inc., Kidder, Peabody and Co. Inc., White, Weld and Co. Inc., Goldman, Sachs and Co. and Kuhn, Loeb and Co.

Proceeds from the issue will be used to repay most of the company's interim debt and for general corporate purposes, a spokesman said.

MUD Chief Says Northern Is Truthful

Omaha (AP) — The general manager of Metropolitan Utilities District said he has no doubt about the credibility of Northern Natural Gas Co.

Robert Bell responded to a report that the House Commerce subcommittee has subpoenaed records from seven natural gas producers to investigate the natural gas industry.

Bell said the Federal Trade Commission has met with the legal staff of gas producers and ironed out differences.

He said the problem centers on the way producers report available natural gas supplies, meaning the figures could reflect a low supply and therefore higher acceptable charges.

Stock Market Wipes Out Early Losses

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market recovered from some wide early losses to finish only a shade lower Wednesday in the slowest session in more than 10 weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 6 points in the first half hour, closed with a .78 loss at 827.83.

Losers outnumbered gainers 795 to 612 among the 1,820 issues changing hands on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume reached only 15.59 million shares, down from 19.44 million Tuesday, and the lightest total since 14.32 million were traded on April 8.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index slipped .19 to 90.39, and the NYSE composite index was off .10 at 48.17.

The early slide was seen as a carryover of the selling that appeared late Tuesday after Du Pont said it expected its second quarter earnings to be down sharply from year-ago levels.

The gradual comeback that followed was aided by news that the nation's balance of payments deficit in the first quarter of this year was much narrower than it had been in the previous three months.

By noon, prices had regained most of their early losses, and the market then drifted aimlessly in a narrow range through the afternoon.

Analysts observed that the slow pace of activity reflected on attitude of continuing caution over the potential speed and strength of the economic recovery many observers are predicting.

On a closing basis, the Dow has now been confined to the relatively narrow trading range of 815-850 for the last six weeks.

Oil issues were mostly lower on reports President Ford was deferring his plan to remove price controls from domestic crude oil.

Exxon gave up 1⅜ to 88⅞; Atlantic Richfield 1¼ to 99½; Getty 4½ to 184½, and Mobil ⅝ to 46.

Du Pont shares, off 4 on Tuesday, slipped another ¼ to 116½.

Helme Products fell 1⅝ to 9½, trading for the first time since June 9, when the company announced moves to end a planned merger with General Cigar.

Wean United, which reported lagging new orders for heavy equipment, lost ⅞ to 6⅜.

Helene Curtis picked up ⅜ to 7½. The company said it expected to come in with modest seles and earnings increases for the fiscal quarter that ended May 31.

The glamor sector was mixed, with a few scattered weak spots—Xerox, down 1⅜ at 66⅜, and Procter & Gamble, off 2⅜ at 92.

Denver Reportedly Signed Morgan State's Webster

THE LINCOLN STAR
Sports
Thursday, June 19, 1975 19

DENVER (UPI) — Morgan State's towering shot blocker Marvin Webster signed a reported multi-year $1.5 million contract Wednesday with the American Basketball Association Denver Nuggets.

A 3 p.m. EDT news conference was called for Thursday to formally announce the signing. It will be the first event held in the city's newly-constructed 18,000-seat arena.

The Nuggets, exercising a bonus pick they received for allowing Marvin Barnes to sign with the Spirits of St. Louis last year, made the 7-foot Webster the first player selected in the ABA draft last Monday.

Webster, also drafted by the Atlanta Hawks of the rival National Basketball Association, becomes only the second first round pick signed by the Denver ABA franchise. In 1969, the then-Denver Rockets signed Bob Presley from California and he showed up only for the first day of camp that year.

Nugget officials were careful about how they discussed Webster's signing.

"We've always felt we had a deal set up but in this business you never know," said general manager Carl Scheer, who Tuesday was named pro basketball's executive of the year by the Sporting News.

However, Atlanta coach Cotton Fitszimmons was certain the Hawks would not land Webster. He told newsmen Wednesday morning that Webster called him at 2:30 a.m. and said he was going to Denver to sign with the ABA franchise.

"They drafted Webster first because they had a commitment," Fitzsimmons said. "I don't know if the name was on the dotted line or not but they had a commitment."

During his career at Morgan State, Webster averaged 17.5 points and 19.9 rebounds while setting an NCAA single season rebounding record as a junior with 740. In his final three season, Webster averaged 7.5 blocked shots a game.

With Webster in the fold, the Nuggets attention now turns to signing All-America forward David Thompson of North Carolina State, who was the first player picked in the NBA draft by Atlanta.

Fitzsimmons said losing Webster made it even more important that the Hawks go after Thompson, but the Nuggets will have something to say about that.

Thompson was drafted by Virginia in the ABA, but with the acquisition of Webster Nugget center Mike Green has become expendable and if a forward was signed second-year forward Jan van Breda Kolff would also be possible trade bait.

Virginia was interested in both Green and vanBreda Kolff and the Squires' selection of Thompson in the draft —the first pick after Denver named Webster —was considered from the start as merely a formality to allow Denver to negotiate with the 6-5 jumping jack.

The Nuggets reinforced beliefs they were interested in Thompson Tuesday with the signing of his 5-7 teammate, Monte Towe. Even though Nugget officials have maintained all along they wanted to give Towe a chance to play pro ball it was also well known that he was instrumental in deciding where Thompson would sign.

"Negotiations have been on a very high plain with David and his agent," said Scheer. "They just would not give us the committment that we received from Marvin and that was why we chose him first."

Former Husker quarterback Dave Humm and Baylor coach Grant Teaff, both on the West squad, pause during a workout for the Coaches All-American game Saturday night at Lubbock, Tex.

City Recreation 'Juggles' Softball

By RYLY JANE RUSSELL
Star Sports Writer

Juggling 5,000 persons every week onto 13 softball diamonds seems a virtual impossibility.

But every week, the City Recreation Department schedules games for 273 softball teams for men, women and girls on the 13 diamonds the Parks Department reserves for "city rec" softball.

Al Hawthorne supervises boys' athletics, but his duties include men's fast and slow pitch softball and boys baseball.

"When you start adding how many people we have involved, you can see what a popular program this is," Hawthorne said

"This program has grown by leaps and bounds," he continued. "This year we had to add an extra league of 16 teams to take care of the applicants, and we still head teams that wanted in

The women's softball has grown just as fast. This year, there are 103 teams, compared to last year's 70 teams.

"When we started this program nine years ago," said Donna Frohardt, director of women's athletics, "there were just 23 teams Then we moved to 48 and it stayed there for a few years. Now we're over 100."

Both the men's and women's softball programs are divided into leagues for competitive play

In the men's program, there are five divisions of fast pitch softball. The AAA league always plays at Ballard Field and has 10 teams.

The AA league has 10 teams and the A and B leagues have six teams each. All four divisions play ball twice a week.

The other division of fast pitch includes six leagues with six teams in each, which play once a week.

The slow pitch program has just two divisions AAA slow pitch games are always played at Elks Field, while the other leagues of six teams each play once a week at different fields.

"We try to rotate the teams as much as possible," said Hawthorne, "so that the men get a chance to play at all the fields. We realize there are some fields that just aren't as good as the others, so we compensate for that."

The women's leagues are divided into nine classes with eight or nine teams in each class. All the women's teams were reclassified after a preliminary period according to abilities.

Both the AAA leagues handle their own tournaments, but the city recreation Department schedules the other tournaments

"Our tournaments will start the last week in July and will probably take four to five weeks," Frohardt said "The teams will have 11 regular season games, provided we don't get rained out as often as we have in the early part of the season."

The tournaments planned by city rec will be double elimination The men's tournaments will also be divided into slow pitch and fast pitch

"The rain this spring forced postponement of some of the games, and we even had some of our makeup games rained out," Hawthorne said, "so we'll try to make them up at the end of the season, but I just don't know if we can get them all in."

The clamor for makeup games and more teams than they know what to do with has prompted some ideas for new programs next summer.

"I've already put in the budget to have a coed league next summer," Frohardt said "They would have to play on the weekends, but I'm sure we can find people who would like to play.

"The teams would field 10 people, five women and five men, in a slow pitch format," she continued. "Some of the other cities who have similar programs have been met with real enthusiasm."

UPI

For the third straight day, rain fell on the Medinah, Ill., course to limit practice for the U.S. Open which is scheduled to start Thursday.

Nicklaus Likes Odds At Winning U.S. Open

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, again firmly entrenched as pro golf's premier performer, seeks the second leg on his all-but-impossible dream in the 75th United States Open Championship that gets underway Thursday.

This is the key to his quest of the unattained modern Grand Slam of Golf—a one-year sweep of all the world's major titles, the Masters, American and British Opens and the PGA national championships.

He holds the Masters crown.

And, in private conversations with friends, he has said he believes he can win the British Open and the PGA, to be played later in the year. The courses designated for those tournaments favor him, he said.

So this one, perhaps the most coveted of all the world's golf titles, serves as the crucial test.

He brings to that test the most outstanding credentials ever accumulated. He has won a record 15 major crowns. He is generally acknowledged as the greatest player the world has ever known. He has won almost everything worth winning.

And, now at age 35, he may be at the very peak of his game

"If I can win the Open, I have a better chance at the Slam than I did in '72," said Nicklaus, who swept the first two titles in the series that year.

The reason?

Simple, said Jack.

"I'm a much better player now."

His performance this season would support that statement. He won three in a row at one stretch, capped by that dramatic finish in the Masters. He has been third three times, fourth once and lower than ninth in only one start this season.

That performance came in response to a challenge by Johnny Miller. He won three early season tournaments, set a flock of records and was eyeing Nicklaus' long-time role as the game's No. 1 player.

But he hasn't beaten Nicklaus this year. They tied in two tournaments. In all others in which both played, Nicklaus finished ahead.

It has put Nicklaus' confidence at a high point. His desire is as keen as ever. His ability to concentrate is unmatched. His game is coming to a peak. And, he said, "I'm driving it better than I ever have in my life."

As usual on an Open course, driving is a major factor.

The Medinah Country Club course, a par 71 layout that meanders some 7,032 yards over gently rolling hills studded by 4,500 trees, may place even more emphasis than usual on the tee shot. The rough is up. The fairways are narrow, 25-35 yards in width at the landing areas.

And that premium on driving could favor Lee Trevino, the brash and brassy guy who has won this title twice and ranks among the game's most accurate off the tee.

"For the last eight years I've been the best driver in the game and they're just now getting around to recognizing it," said the outspoken Trevino, holder of the current PGA title

It could also help 45-year-old Arnold Palmer, a non-winner in the United States for two long seasons but still one of the game's best drivers.

Tom Weiskopf and Miller, who tied for second, one shot back of Nicklaus, in the Masters, rank as the chief challengers, however.

Each desperately wants to wipe out the memory of that Masters loss. Each is convinced he can do it here.

But both have a high regard for the defending titleholder, Hale Irwin.

"He's going to be tought to beat," Miller said. "He's putting just super and he's an awfully good chipper. And it's going to take that, it's going to take a scrambler to win this one."

Irwin, who has a happy history of playing the tough courses very well, recently won the Atlanta Classic against the strongest field of the year and has had a series of consistently high finishes all season.

Among the other standouts in the field of 150 are Gary Player, the gritty little globetrotter from South Africa,; veteran Gene Littler, a two-time winner this year; England's Tony Jacklin and such young stars as Jerry Heard, Hubert Green, Tom Watson and John Mahaffey.

Billy Casper, a two-time Open winner, and Lee Elder, who created such a stir as the first black to play in the Masters, failed to qualify. Dave Hill chose not to enter. Australian Bruce Crampton withdrew with a shoulder ailment.

Portions of the final two rounds Satruday and Sunday will be telecast live by ABC-TV.

Rookie Lynn Powers Red Sox To Win

By The Associated Press

Rookie Fred Lynn drove in 10 runs with three homers and a triple Wednesday night, powering the Boston Red Sox to a 15-1 rout of the Detroit Tigers.

Lynn ripped a two-run homer in the first inning, a three-run blast in the second, a two-run triple in the third and after beating out an infield single in the eighth, capped his big night with a three-run homer in the ninth.

Lynn's RBI total tied the Boston single game set by Rudy York in 1946 and tied by Norm Zauchin in 1955. It was just one short of the American League record of 11 set by the New York Yankees' Tony Lazzeri in 1936, and two short of the major league mark of 12 set by Jim Bottomley of St. Louis in 1924.

In the other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles stopped the Cleveland Indians 13-6, the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the New York Yankees 5-3, the Kansas City Royals pounded the California Angels 13-0, the Texas Rangers drubbed the Chicago White Sox 10-3 and the Oakland A's beat the Minnesota Twins 7-6.

In the National League, the Cincinnati Reds tripped the Atlanta Braves 6-1, the Philadelphia Phillies turned back the Chicago Cubs 9-7, the San Francisco Giants beat the San Diego Padres 8-1, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the St. Louis Cardinals 9-3, the Montreal Expos nipped the New York Mets 7-6 in 10 innings and the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Houston Astros 4-0.

Lee May, Tommy Davis and Paul Blair combined to knock in 10 runs as Baltimore pounded Cleveland. Bill Travers scattered six hits and got last-out relief help from Ed Rodriguez for Milwaukee. Kansas City jolted no-hit artist Nolan Ryan for four first-inning runs and went on to beat California behind Marty Pattin's five-hitter.

Roy Smalley smashed a grand slam homer in the eighth inning and Ferguson Jenkins overcame three home run pitches as Texas beat Chicago. Joe Rudi hit a pair of home runs, including a grand slam, to power Oakland over Minnesota.

Johnny Bench doubled home two runs in a three-run third inning to power Cincinnati past Atlanta. Tommy Hutton slammed a two-run pinch homer in the ninth to lead Philadelphia over Chicago. Derrel Thomas doubled and scored in a three-run first inning, belted a two-run single in the fourth and singled and scored in the sixth, leading San Francisco over San Diego.

Jim Rooker pitched a six-hitter to lead Pittsburgh over St. Louis. Montreal nipped New York on Pete Mackanin's RBI single in the 10th. Los Angeles stopped Houston on Burt Hooton's three-hitter.

Soviets For Meet

PRAGUE (AP) — Soviet sports officials still hope a track meet between the Soviet Union and the United States will be staged as planned, Jiri Cumbera, a secretary of the Czechoslovak Athletic Union, said Wednesday.

Kumbera told The Associated Press he learned in a phone call to Kiev that Soviet officials still expect the meet to take place.

He said his union hoped a settlement could be reached, but in the event that this was impossible, it was willing to invite a Soviet mini team to a track meet in Prague July 7-8 where teams from the United States, Czechoslovakia and Poland are to compete.

An agreement negotiated between the American Broadcasting Company and Russian authorities to allow the American television network to televise the dual track meet at Kiev July 4-5 prompted the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union to cancel the meeting.

The AAU said it had a working agreement with CBS Inc., to televise its events and the deal with the Soviet All Sports Committee and ABC created "numerous contract violations."

Schwartzkopf Wins Tourney

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP)—Dorothy Schwartzkopf of Lincoln shot a 84-83 for a 167 to win the first Nebraska Woman's State Medal Golf Tournament Wednesday.

She wound up with a 35-foot putt on the 18th hole for a birdie 4. Two strokes behind was Theresa Wanek of Omaha who shot 85-84 for 169.

In third was Valerie Skinner, 14, of North Platte, who had 88-84 172.

The tourney, attracting about 50 golfers, was played at Riverside Country Club.

Other top finishers were Kathy Curry of Columbus, 176; Jean Hyland of Lincoln, 180, and Elizabeth Wanek of Omaha, 182.

Southern Hospitality Liked

Southern Hospitality

Lake Charles, La — Louisianna (pronounced "Lose-ee-anna) is the home of hogs head cheese, grits, coffee strong enough to make a northerner stand up with each sip and good ole southern hospitality

It's also the home for the 1975 Outdoor Writers Assn. of America convention for 1975, thousands of alligators and some of the most Patriotic people found anywhere in America

It's Cajun Country where the French-Canadian descendants found a home in the humid flatlands of America's south The south has been typically conservative, flag-waving and pull for old glory country since Jefferson bought up the Louisiana Purchase in a realestate steal in the early days of America

Louisianians haven't forgotten what all America has done for them, like many others who riot, burn, loot or dodge the draft system. And they aren't afraid to step up and tell folks about it.

Gov Erwin Edwards opened the conference Sunday evening with a keynot address calling for all Americans to buckle up in the name of the country to whip this current enegery situation head-on.

Homestate humorist and Cajun Country yarn-stringer Justin Wilson backed up the governors words the next evening between stories of Cajun life He said America is still made up of the same types of people who helped found the country from covered wagons caravaning across the uncharted vastness.

It's the real America in the South The people are friendly — as friendly as they'd want to be and as successful as they d want to be, according to Wilson.

Outdoorsman's Paradise

Not only is it the home of true-blooded, redneck country lovers, Louisiana is also advertised as "The Sportsman s Paradise" Justly so

There are few things an outdoorsman couldn't find to do in this state of swamps, forests, rivers, lakes and ocean shores Having spent some service time at nearby Fort Polk, I can attest to it being an outdoorsman's dream for getting out and getting away

Our company of young infantry trainees were lost more than we were found while learning the finer aspects of following compass readings, dodging cotton-mouths with fire in their eyes and beating off the hourds of misquitoes during our week-long "campout"

The campout wasn't bad. The snakes were. There were cottonmouths by the thousands, copperheads, corral snakes, diamondback rattlers, timber rattlers and pigmy rattlers. And those were just the poisonous ones.

We had some young Eastern troupers who thought catching scorpions and putting them into a make-shift fighting arena was the makings of a good time Or skinning the cotton-mouths for hat bands was a "fun way to spend an afternoon" Some of us didn't

But Louisiana is not all snakes, alligators and swamp county It has some of the top fishing spots for bass and crappie you d find anywhere The quail and waterfowl hunting is superb

Toledo Bend the most talked about black bass lake in the nation, is just a long cast from Lake Charles, and the fishing reports are super everywhere

Toss in the Southern hospitality of Lake Charles and Louisianians and Cajun Country would rival any 'Sportsman s Paradise mentionable

Maj. Zarfas 'Moving Down The Street'

After six years as commanding officer of the Lincoln Salvation Army, Maj. Ross Zarfas is "moving down the street."

He will take over the reins as city coordinator for Salvation Army activities in Des Moines, Iowa, effective July 2.

Succeeding Zarfas will be Capt. Peter Van der Vliet now of Sioux City, Iowa.

Zarfas' transfer is part of "a clean sweep" of the Lincoln Salvation Army, the departing commanding officer said.

Three other officers at the Lincoln Army are being transferred. Lt. Dennis Strissel, Zarfas' assistant, has been transferred to Kearney and will be replaced by Lt. and Mrs. Joseph Baunoch of Chicago; Capt. George Smelser, Men's Social Service Center director, and his wife will move to St. Louis, Mo., and be replaced by Brig. and Mrs. Louis Forney of Milwaukee, Wis.; and Auxiliary Capt. and Mrs. Dale Kernmoade who are going to Mitchell, S.D., will be replaced by Auxiliary Capt. and Mrs. William Morris of Milwaukee.

Zarfas said he has spent "six very happy and fruitful years here in this community."

The new commanding officer, a Salvation Army officer for 15 years, has served five cities in Iowa as well as in the finance department of the Army Center in St. Louis.

HEW Rejects Exon Health Plan

By United Press International

Gov. J. James Exon announced Wednesday that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has rejected his plan to establish health planning areas within Nebraska as required by federal law.

Rejected was a plan which provided for six separate areas.

"My recommendations were based on what was best for the State of Nebraska as determined by the people of our state rather than by federal bureaucrats," Exon said.

"Unfortunately, the bureaucrats prevailed in this instance and I am convinced they did not give adequate consideration to the specific needs and characteristics of our state," he added.

One of the provisions of the plan, which Exon said might have prompted the rejection, was a section that established five areas for which waivers of a minimum population requirement of 500,000 were needed.

Exon said while he was discouraged he would attempt to work out an alternate plan that would gain acceptance. He has until July 11 to submit that alternate.

Wavier requests were denied for areas one through four, which comprised northeast, central and western Nebraska. Action on area five, which included Lancaster and southeast Nebraska, was deferred pending revision of the first four areas.

Area six was approved insofar as the Nebraska counties of Dodge, Washington, Douglas and Sarpy were concerned with the addition of seven southwest Iowa counties. Those seven were Harrison, Shelby, Pottawattamie, Mills, Montgomery, Fremont and Page Counties.

In the breakdown, area one included the Panhandle counties of Sioux, Dawes, Sheridan, Box Butte, Scotts Bluff, Morrill, Garden, Banner, Kimball, Cheyenne and Deuel.

Area two included Grant, Hooker, Thomas, Arthur, McPherson, Logan, Keith Lincoln, Perkins, Dawson, Chase, Hayes, Frontier, Gosper, Dundy, Hitchcock, Red Willow and Furnas

Area three included Blaine, Loup, Garfield, Wheeler, Custer, Valley, Greeley, Sherman, Howard, Buffalo, Hall, Merrick, Hamilton, Phelps, Kearney, Adams, Clay, Harlan, Franklin, Webster and Nuckolls

Area four included Cherry, Keya Paha, Boyd, Brown, Rock, Holt, Knox, Cedar, Dixon, Antelope, Pierce, Wayne, Thurston, Madison, Stanton, Cuming, Burt, Boone, Platte, Colfax and Nance

Dakota County was included in Iowa's Sioux City area.

Physicist Says Atomic Accident Boind To Occur

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — One of the nation's leading atomic physicists says that in spite of the most stringent security precautions some sort of "accident" will eventually happen in a nuclear power station or fuel-processing plant.

"Somewhere in the world, after there are 50 or 60 or 100 plants in operation, one of the security systems will be broken and there will be an explosion," Dr. Theodore Taylor said.

NEBCO Sues For Cancelation Of Assessment

NEBCO, Inc. has filed a suit against the city asking that a $49,391 special sewage district assessment be declared illegal and cancelled.

NEBCO, with main offices at 1815 Y St., owns property adjacent to Sewer District 918 on Cornhusker Hwy. between 56th and 70th Sts. The property has sewage connections with a Fletcher St. sewer, according to the suit.

The elevation of the sewer in District 918 is such that none of the NEBCO buildings could ever connect with the sewer, according to the suit. And the suit contends that the construction of the district is of no benefit to the NEBCO property.

The assessment was made in March and upheld in April by the City Council sitting as the Board of Equalization. The suit, filed in Lancaster County District Court, names the city treasurer, mayor and all City Council members as defendants.

NEBCO, formerly Abel Investment Co., is the parent firm of the construction, concrete and sand and gravel enterprises headed by Lincoln businessman George P. Abel.

Walker Tracing Family Origins

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Gerda S. Walker can trace her family tree back to 1748.

Now she devotes her time to helping members of the American Historical Society of Germans From Russia trace their origins.

A charter member of the six-year-old group, headquartered in Lincoln, Mrs. Walker of Denver, Colo., is one of the resource genealogists at the organization's annual convention at the Lincoln Hilton Hotel through Sunday.

It's the younger people, generally the third-generation immigrants, who are interested in tracing their background, she said.

This requires "jumping the ocean and going back to the old country" to get the job done, the genealogist pointed out.

But many of the vital statistics are back in Russia and are not available on request.

Mrs. Walker said the only exception made is for birth certificates of individuals of retirement age who need to apply for social security. But the documents are obtained through U.S. embassy channels, she said.

Finding Records

Finding substitute records is a vital part of Mrs. Walker's job.

Church records are often a major source of establishing family roots. The Mennonite Church came as a whole congregation, carrying with them documents delineating the generations of its members. Families who came to the United States on their own usually carried releases from their churches.

Family Bibles, passports, naturalization papers and Homestead records are also important family-tracing sources.

Volga Germans are Mrs. Walker's specialty group, as she is one herself. Her parents came from the small town of Saratov, on the banks of the Volga River in Russia. She was born in Grand Island brought to Lincoln in 1946.

Mrs. Walker caught the genealogy bug from her mother and she's been at it since her teenage years.

Work Backwards

"You always have to work backwards," she advised That means gathering information about yourself first before tackling your ancestors.

In her case, she said oral tradition was great for keeping family continuity intact.

Working out of an office in the front bedroom in her home, Mrs. Walker serves as a volunteer fulltime resource genealogist for society members.

She gets close to 40 letters a week asking for help or hints on tracing families, and many are repeat requests.

In fact, Mrs. Walker says, "you get to know many of them pretty well through their letters."

8 Intersections To Get Signals

City Traffic Engineer Bob Holsinger Wednesday ordered the installation of automatically controlled traffic signals at eight intersections along S. 40th St.

The intersections, which previously had only stop signs on the side streets, are at: Randolph, D, A, South, Normal Blvd, Van Dorn, Sheridan Blvd., and Pioneers Blvd.

German Song And Dance Troupe To Give Performance Here July 1

The festive music and traditional dances of a village wedding celebration will come to life July 1 when German folk troupes perform in Lincoln as part of a Smithsonian Institution and bicentennial program.

The "Old Ways In the New World" touring program will be presented twice in Lincoln, first at noon on the north steps of the State Capitol and again at 7:30 p.m. the same day at Gateway Mall.

Similar concerts by the performers from Germany will be presented July 2 in Grand Island and July 3 in Omaha.

At a Tuesday afternoon meeting in North Platte, the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission approved a $2,500 grant to help sponsor the German musicians' Nebraska performances. The money is from sales of the official Nebraska bicentennial medallion.

200 Performers

More than 200 folk performers from eight countries are traveling to ethnic communities across the United States, helping Americans learn and celebrate our nation's heritage.

The 25 German performers will be overnight guests of a number of Lincoln families. In addition, the German WSI group here will host a dinner for the visitors prior to their evening concert.

The German minstrels and dancers represent several types of traditional music and dance. Each folk tradition will contradict the "oom pah" stereotype of German folk music.

Touring with the performers will be two folklore scholars and one expert on the music of Langenschiltach. These scholars will explain the significance of the music, dance and costumes and point out the differences in regional customs.

Robust Music

From Langenschiltach in the Black Forest area of Germany comes a brass band (blaskapelle) and a dance group (tanzgruppe). The five-member Blaskapelle plays a hearty, robust country music.

The four couples of the Tanzgruppe Langenschiltach will perform traditional wedding festivities and regional dances; they will even bring the elaborate wedding crown traditionally worn by the bride.

The instrumental trio of Gretel Gross plays "Minchener Hackbrettmusik," which translates to Munich Hackbrett music. Grettel Gross on the hackbrett — a hammered dulcimer — is accompained by a musician on guitar and another on zither. Their music is soft, suitable for an intimate setting.

Die Holsteiners represent the musical tradition of their seafaring town in the north of Germany. Besides playing dance and wedding music, the six-member troupe sing sea chanties.

The three-member committee organizing the German troupes' performance and stay here include Mrs. Jerome Warner of Waverly, William Hammelmann and Mrs. Roger Henderson, both of Lincoln.

"Old Ways in the New World: On Tour" is made possible nationally by the Smithsonian Institution and the National Park Service. It is a national outreach of the Festival of American Folklife sponsored by American Airlines and General Foods, and is an officially recognized program of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Thursday

Some heavyweight boxing champions and astrology: Aquarian former title holder who talked to me about astrology: Max Baer. Former Capricorn champion who confided to me that he studied astrology: George Foreman. Current Capricorn champ who told me, "You and that astrology — it can't predict the rounds like I can!" — Muhammad Ali. Incidentally, more heavyweight champions have been born under Capricorn than any of the other zodiacal signs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Concern with hidden matters could dominate. You may be doing some reading on occult subjects. Routine is broke. You relax while giving full play to intellectual curiosity. Gemini, Sagittarius persons move back and forth into your personal aura.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent is on what might be permanent and "serious," such as partnership and marriage. You extricate yourself from emotional trap. Self-expression is featured. You know what is restricting you, legal or otherwise. Thus, you will be better able to do something about it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make inquiries. Get answers to perplexing questions. Another Gemini, a Virgo and a Sagittarian figure in picture. Accent is on work, health, basic priorities, recognition of special services. You get offer which may be hard to reject. Give yourself credit — others will follow your example.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lunar aspect good and now coincides with romantic concerns. Your creative juices flow. You break from trap, mould — you become more individual, willing to change, take a chance, enter course leading to adventure. Yes, it's you!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Spotlight on security, basic issues, older persons, property. You receive offer, attractive on surface, which needs additional study. Get professional appraisal. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently. Look beneath surface indications.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Short trip could be profitable. Visit to older individual works to your advantage — is good for you emotionally and in other ways. Idea can be transformed into viable concept. Short article can be expanded into valuable feature, even a book outline.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on finalizing transaction, getting cost figures and doing something about information obtained. Aries and another Libran are in picture. Stick to budget. Refuse to be tempted into foolish promise. You'll understand!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Take lead — be a self-starter. Cycle is such that you succeed by being first, taking initiative. Emphasize personality, personal appearance. New start in new direction is indicated. Welcome chance to be a pioneer. Get to heart of matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Work behind the scenes. Be discreet. Don't reveal all you know. You could be asked to appear before the media. Explain position in meaningful manner. You may be representing special group, institution or organization.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A wish is fulfilled. You don't get exactly what you want, but you can get what is good for you. Accent is on friendship, romantic interlude, creative endeavors. What was restrictive will be removed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent is on career, community, standing, ability to handle added assignment or overtime. Another Aquarian, Leo and a Scorpio figure prominently. Hard facts are placed on table — and you are given a choice.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Good Moon aspect coincides now with journey, language study, long-distance communication. Be ready for change, travel and a variety of experiences.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are original, independent and creative. You also are temperamental, determined to the point of stubbornness — and romantic. Leo and Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. June, this month, could be your most significant period of the year. If single, you marry during 1975 or join an organization as a partner. Married or single, you will gain greater reward for your efforts.

(Learn "The Truth About Astrology." Send birthdate (for our survey) and 75 cents to Omarr Booklet, The Lincoln Star, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053. You'll open door to fascinating study and self-revelation!)

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
